Annual Report To the

Stockholders

We offer a cordial welcome, and we invite all to be a part of WHS Corp., to live out with us our highs and lows . . . In this annual report to you the stockholders, we plan to provide insight to advancements, what went on behind these advancements, what problems were presented and how these problems were alleviated — the life inside the Walnut High Corporation. We want you to live through what we did and who we were

This annual report is a result of the growing consciousness surrounding the economics that affect our every day life, as well as that of the national economy. It describes current operations and new developments; it reports the results of combined

To the 150 employees of WHS Corp., together with suppliers and financiers, we extend our appreciation for dedicated efforts in a year of challenge and change. To the 2590 ments that made our corporation run come, and we invite all to be a part of highs and lows . . . .

The high's are what we all look forward to, but sometimes "more" isn't always better.

Unexpected Highs...

The stock market fluctuates to highs and lows everyday as does life in general. The highs are what we all look forward to, but sometimes more isn't always better. As the population rose 170 from the previous year, three additional portables were needed to accommodate the expanding corporation.

New executive positions were opened up. But because we were looking for such high quality personnel, many deficits were not filled until after the fiscal year had started. One of our top brokers, Mr. Scott Wright, transfered over to another company. Ms. Ann Ashworth took over Mr. Wright's place in Senior Seminar after a whole flock of substitutes. As Diane Mainhurst put it, "I like a real class." Eight new brokers were added to the social science, English, P.E., and math departments.

Walnut's stock was so popular that after the year began new stockholders continued to try to buy in. Some were attending the school illegally since they did not live in the authorized district. Many were discovered and sent back to their old schools. A rise in the number of stockholders was seen in the parking lot, class rooms, buses, attendance lines and counselors' offices. The office was filled with transactions in the opening weeks of school, where there were numerous class changes and registration of new shareholders.

Other commodities rose sharply that had a direct effect on the students. The price of gold rose to a record $440 an ounce in September. That meant all those "cute" little charms, charm holders, gold S-chains and class rings were more expensive and dear than ever.

Gas had been steadily rising since last March. It seemed harder than ever to have the privilege of driving to school. More confusion was added when new pumps were installed. Some measured by liters and others half of the actual price. At the present rate of inflation, gas would be $1.92 a gallon for regular by June.

Company hours were expanded to nine periods so all the work could be finished. Also an extra lunch was added so the preferred stock wouldn't have to mix with the common stock. This gave the class of '80 a chance to get closer and hold class meetings.

A very unexpected high of a different kind was discovered at the beginning of the year. An eight inch marijuana plant was found in the senior mall by a student who then reported it to the administration. The plant was quickly and quietly removed without the knowledge of the stockholders. It is not known how the plant got there, but that and the other highs caused no waves in the company.

During the opening of school there were many negative factors that affected the production of teaching and learning

The worst smog seige in 25 years attacked Southern California in mid-September. During the first 10 days of school, seven stage-two smog alerts were called. A stage-two smog alert is when the ozone exceeds .35 parts per million. The Pomona-Walnut Valley was rated by The South Coast Air Quality Management Board as one of the worst areas for air quality.

In a corporation, many factors affect its production — not just within the corporation itself, but from outside factors as well. Sometimes these factors are helpful, but at other times they hinder production.

During the opening of school there were many negative factors that affected the production of teaching and learning.

An unbearable heat wave also plagued Southern California. Temperatures ranging from the high 90's to over 110° lasted for the first two weeks of school. Due to the heat, 12 major forest and brush fires and scores of minor fires set California ablaze. A total of 110,000 acres of timber and brushland were destroyed at an estimated cost of $400 million. Smoke from the fires added to the already bad smog situation.

Classrooms were no escape from the heat and smog. Air conditioning in the C, G, J, portables, and portions of the B buildings stopped working. "The heat and smog are getting the students off to a bad start," stated English teacher Jennifer Osacho. "It's hard to concentrate on your work when it's so hot," explained senior Nancy Loftesnes.

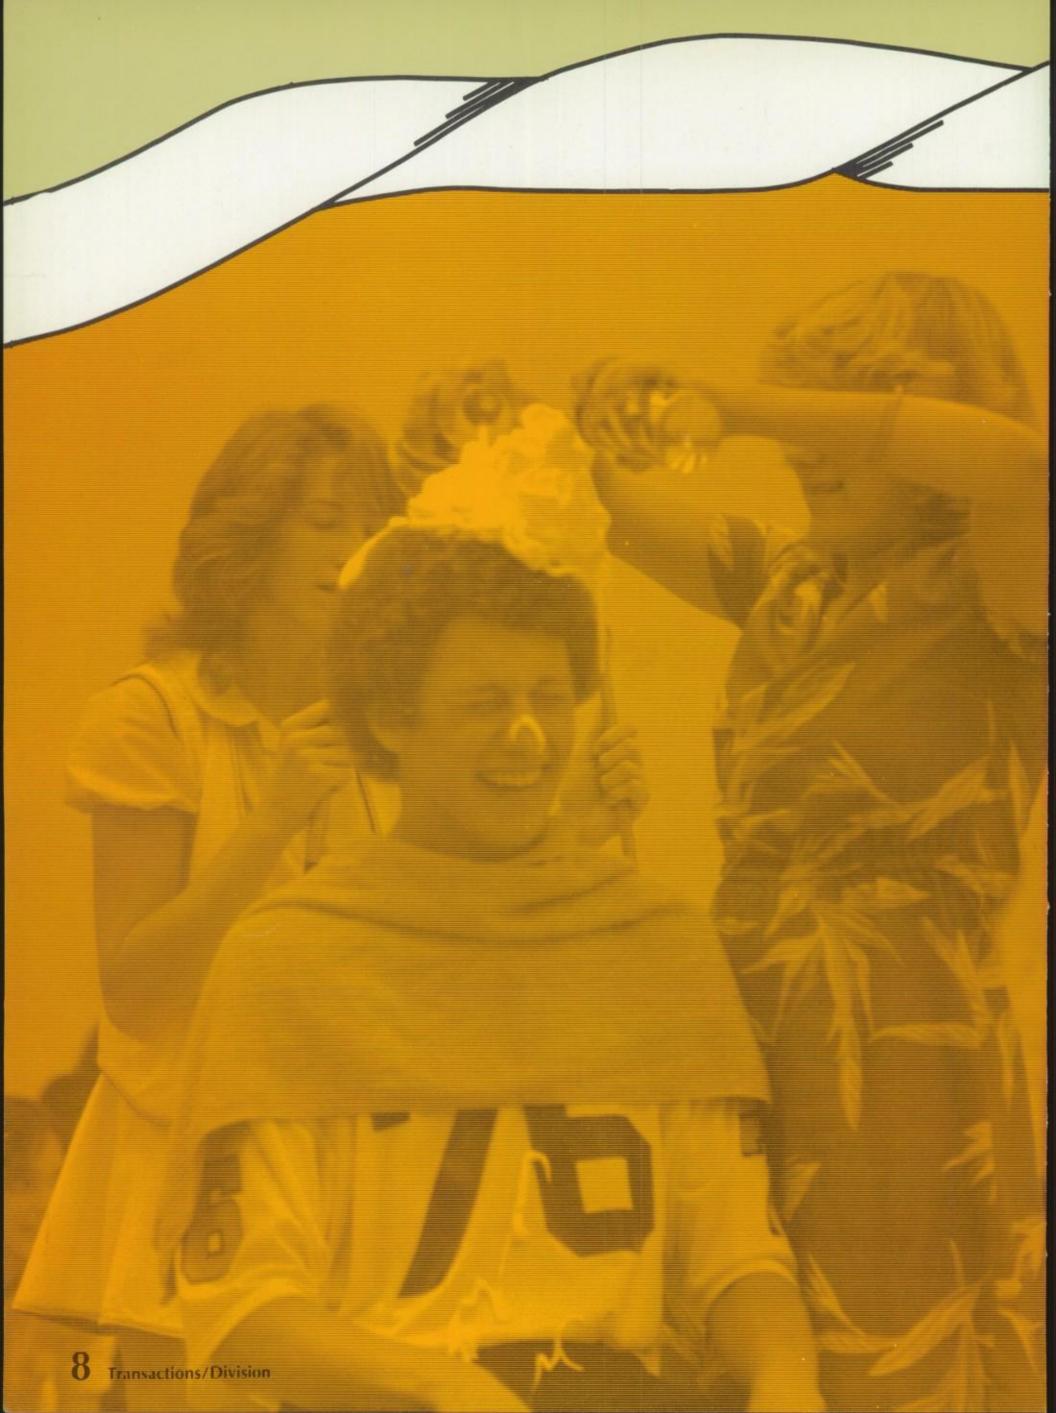

As the heat cooled, the fires were extinguished and the air quality improved for the moment. Students and teachers alike could finally begin to accomplish the production of teaching and learning.

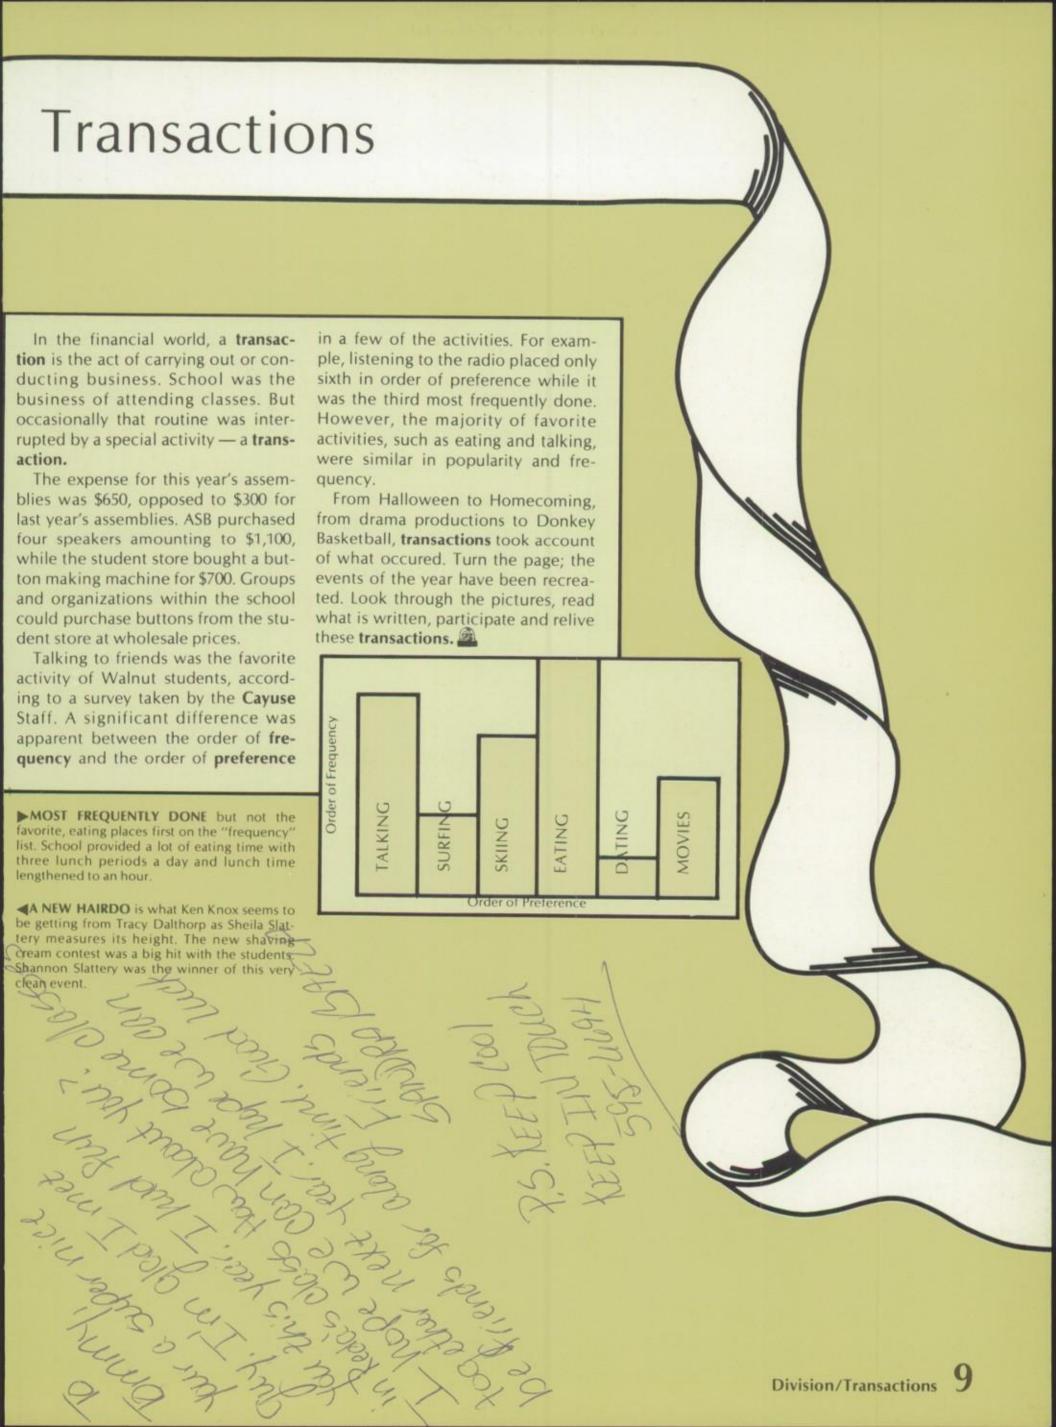

▲AGGRAVATING STUDENTS by its length and snails pace, a freight train approaches Lemon Ave. Blocked intersections were a good excuse for students to be late for school.

DUMPING DECORATIONS

Toilet paper, "For Rent" signs, styrofoam packing and shredded paper covered the campus. Radial tires were suspended from the roof of the cafeteria. Slaves were bought and sold during the slave auction. Students volunteered to be sold while the audience bidded for a slave. The auction brought in $632 for the slaves purchased. The sophomore football team bought by Terry Brewster and Cathy Collins cost $52, the most expensive item sold.

Brad Miller was seen on campus pulling his master Carolyn Jordan in a red wagon on Slave Day. Tammy Wilgus, fitted in a wet suit, swept the path of her master Allen York. Some masters complained of their slaves hiding. Most of the slaves just served as book carriers.

Stacked on one another, each class member piggybacked a classmate in order to cram more people in a limited area of space. The seniors won, squeezing 105 people into the space alloted. The classes also competed in a burping contest, a banana feetpeeling contest, water balloon tossing, and whistling after eating four crackers. Students in their parents' old clothes with bandages holding their glasses together roamed the campus on nerd dress-up day. Darryl Paris wore pants over his head and a shirt around his legs. Suspense was in the air that night as Mike Beeman, last year's Homecoming king, wandered around the platform. Taunting and teasing the audience, he slowly walked past each of the eight couples, eyeing each of the princes playfully. Finally, he stopped and extended his hand to the new king, Dennis Willard.

Earlier that day, October 11, Walnut held its first double Homecoming assembly. Because of over-crowding at previous pep rallies and the traditional popularity of the Homecoming assembly, ASB decided to hold two assemblies plus a night pep rally. Secretary of School Spirit Sheila Slattery stated, "We decided to have the night pep rally in addition to the two assemblies so that we could announce the king there. We wanted to have only one assembly but we would have had to turn about 700 people away because of crowding. An outdoor assembly was also out of the question because of the unpredictable weather."

The double assemblies topped off a week of vigorous activities for the student body. But as the lights dimmed and the promenade of the Court began, all eyes were focused on the sixteen seniors who had been chosen by their peers a week earlier. As Barbi Miller and Mike Simone read each candidate's favorite things, the audience had to decide who their choices for king and queen would be. Voting took place in fourth period classes. A shortage of ballots given to teachers forced some students to go to the Student Store to vote.

BRANE'S BEIGN

Death confronted the Damien Spartans on the Mustangs' gridiron Homecoming night, October 12. The Mustangs executed Damien, 1978's third place team in the Mount San Antonio league. Stomping pepsters and spectators stretched their voices to liven the event. The score of 27-16 on the scoreboard spelled victory for the Walnut Mustangs. "The game was awesome!" exclaimed sophomore Lori Mason.

Bright red trucks rounded the track parading the Homecoming princessess at half time. Clutching their fathers' arms, the princesses strolled down the football field and were introduced to the audience. Then darkness stilled the night. A voice over the stadium fractured the silence and announced the queen. Flashing cameras, a red cape, a bouquet of yellow roses and Dennis Willard (the Homecoming king) welcomed Tammy Crane to her reign.

Two first place awards were given to the only entries in the float contest, the French club and the Drama department. To compensate for the new regulation of having no cars or trucks carrying the floats, bicycles and a man-carried stage were used. Eight members of the French club peddled around the field with red, white and blue decorated bicycles. Clothed French style, the riders waved their half-eaten loaves of French bread to the audience. In renaissance attire, the Drama department paraded an elevated queen followed by her lords, monks, and jesters.

The band marched into formation and spaced themselves on the field. "Sometimes We Reflect on the Good Times," the theme of Homecoming, echoed in the background. The alumni were scattered along the sidelines. Then the instruments hummed "The Way We Were."

When the final seconds of the game ticked off, the Walnut fans rampaged down from the stands. Into their cars, the crowd headed their separate ways. Some went to Carrow's, In-and-Out and Pizza Hut, the after-the-game "hang-outs." Many attended the Homecoming dance. Others socialized at parties until the following day.

ROWDY RALLIES!

Bizarre games seemed to dominate the spotlight at most of these ear-splitting events. Peeling a banana with your toes, burping contests, whistling with five crackers in your mouth, kissing a cheerleader (who's really your mother), getting shaving cream sprayed on top of your head, mourning for Damien, and the "Mr. Bill Show" were just a few of the rousing happenings. "Topless Cheerleaders" were promised to appear at the second rally. As the music started and the pepsters began to "bump and grind," Jeff Richardson and Allen York rushed into the gym, taking their shirts off on the way. Cat-calls and whistles filled the air but the sophomore football team stole the show by ripping off their jerseys and performing their own version of a burlesque show.

Walnut held its first night pep rally ever on October 11. The rally also doubled as the third Homecoming Assembly, to which the Courts' parents were invited. Surprisingly, the rally was widely attended by students, "There wasn't as much enthusiasm and spirit as I thought there would be at a night pep rally. The main reason that most people went was just to see the king crowned," commented songleader Sandi Mulligan, Junior Kim Huttger stated, "I thought the events like the banana peeling contest were really funny. But the burping contest was the best because the freshmen out-did the seniors by a long-shot."

SEXES ENGAGE IN GAMES

As we drove to the gym that Monday night, I really didn't know what to expect. I'd bought a ticket for this, the second annual "Battle of the Sexes" between the volleyball and football teams, because I knew so many people on both teams.

When the match finally began, I realized that November 3 was no ordinary night. Of course, I rooted for the volleyball team, not because I disliked football, but because I wanted them to be taught a lesson. The meager but loud crowd seemed to be behind volleyball too, and when it was over, volleyball had triumphed, winning three sets out of watched the nine Walnut contestants answer questions like, "Describe bachelor #2 as an animal." The funny and sometimes suggestive answers were the basis on which three students from Wilson High had to pick their dates. Michele Sirchia, Troy Prince, and Gretchen Mark were the lucky winners. M.C. Brad Miller announced that the trio and their dates had won passes to Knott's Berry the lunch area was another change in Farm. All in all, I had a good laugh and a fun lunch. 🎉

HALLOWEENING ON WHEELS

School invaded by martians, goblins and spooks? No, not aliens from another planet, or the rising of the dead, but Halloween day had arrived. Many people decorated themselves up to celebrate the occasion. Clinging leotards were worn to represent playboy bunnies, cats, and mice. A cluster of costumed people rumbled around school on roller skates.

"Whip me, beat me, I want more!" cried M.C. Alan York as Honnie Bosnyak depicting a "Kiss" character paced the stage to be judged in the lunch time costume competitions. Selected teachers rated the contestants. The one with the highest score won an album and a bag of candy. Characters from babies to witches displayed themselves.

Skipping to the first place award during fourth period lunch were the Tin man and Dorothy, who on regular school days were Todd Pierce and Beverly Bell. Earning his first place points, cupid Jeff Richardson pulled down his boxers to show off his red heart underwear during fifth period lunch. A chick coming out of an egg, Rondalin Bramwell rotated out on her roller skates for sixth period lunch's winner.

Pranksters designed decorations in front of the Art display building Halloween morning. Playground equipment was planted on the grass. Fishing line extended from building to building obstructing people crossing the portables by the smoking area. The word HUBE was spray-painted on the ground making its debut appearance.

For the evening some students had to stay home and pass out candy. "No one else was home so I had to," commented Rachel Millard. High schoolers with their pillow cases and paper bags still competed with the minors for the free trick or treat candy. Throwing eggs and racing up and down blocks kept pranksters busy for the night. As Ken Knox put it, "The fun of pranks is the risk of being caught."

▲ DETERMINING THE WINNER of the costume contest, Kevin Motschall and Linda Brown judge the contestants. Added to the lunch time activities was an apple bobbing contest. The participants had to bite the apple out of the bucket and eat it.

After hearing the applause for the first act, I knew the next number was about to begin. Under the spotlights of the Industry Hills Convention Center, Cabaret Night attracted a crowd of students, their parents, and relatives. After walking through the doors, the classy atmosphere invited everyone to come in, sit down and be entertained in style.

Butterflies fluttered inside my stomach while waiting in the corridor for my cue. I blended in with all the other Mustang Singers. The dressing room where I had just come from was filled with chatter. Applause broke out for Brad Cline after singing "You Take My Breath Away." A little scared and nervous, I followed the line of girls who wore a dress identical to mine. My palms were beginning to sweat. I approached closer to the stage, when all of a sudden, the blinding lights hit my face. The fright had disappeared. I tried to treat the performance just like an ordinary practice.

My voice joined the others to sing "Everybody Be Dancin'." I wasn't dancing though, the whole group just stood there and sang. Getting her chance to solo, Valerie Allen sang "Last Dance."

Confined to the dressing rooms, I

►"MACHO-MACHO MAN" chants Kenny Morris dancing around imitating the policeman of the "Village People." "Kenny likes to didn't get a chance to see the other members perform. Judging by the applause I heard, the audience loved the numbers as much as I did when I saw them during rehearsals. "It was fantastic!" commented Ted Brewster. "Everybody did great because of the balance of the choral department and the dancers."

Cabaret Night continued while I waited for my next cue. Commercial interruptions were also included. The Chamber Choral sang a medley from the making of "Reese's Peanut Butter Cups" to the effect of a "Tic Tac." Costumed as cats, a group of tailed singers pounced out chanting "meow-meow-meow," for "Meow Mix" cat food. The audience went bananas after the "Chiquita" song, then mellow voices hummed the ad for "Miller Beer."

The Entertainers added a couple of solos by Kim Gray, Carol Bohr and John Bishaha. Tiffany Bender, as Minnie the Mermaid, participated in an ensemble. Her half-fish body was carried on stage. Ending the program, the Chamber Singers sang their solo medleys and the finale. The evening was finished with the last stroke of music director Mr. Larry Cline's wand.

A"WHENEVER I CALL YOU FRIEND," respond John Bishaha and Cindy Perez during their duet. The music was clearly heard; but in several phases of the dance production by Lori Ellsworth and Teri Sewell, the music paused but the dancers continued.

A LOT OF COSTUME CHANGING is involved with preparing for each scene. "Commercial Madman" begins the commercial medley sung by Tracie Smith, Pam Hailey, Cindy Perez, Brian Gile, Donna Waska, Eric Peterson, Cindy Hightower and other Chamber Chorale Singers.

▼EXPRESSING HIS EMOTION through the microphone, Eric Peterson serenades the audience with "She Believes In Me." Although this number received long applause, many people stated that fewer solos for a night's program, in contrast to last year's, made the show more enjoyable.

LIVIN' IT UP

On Friday and Saturday nights, a strange phenomenon occurred in homes throughout Walnut and Diamond Bar. Hundreds of teenagers stripped off their uniforms of blue jeans, T-shirts, and "off the walls" and donned even dressier French jeans, "OP" shirts, and "Candies." The long week of school was forgotten — the weekend was here!!

For many, Friday nights were spent at football or basketball games. These popular sporting events were a chance for friends to meet, talk, and, if the team was winning, go crazy. After the game, many students went to the dances in the gym, or to Carrow's, the local hang-out.

Saturday nights were a different story. Roller-skating, a fairly new fad, was a popular pastime. Skate Junction, Skate Factory, and Skate Country were the most widely attended rinks. Puente Hills Mall was also a favorite place to shop, watch a movie, or check out "new prospects." "Showboat," a brand new amusement center in Puente Hills East, was usually packed. Pinball machines, miniature golfing, batting cages, Malibu Grand Prix race cars, and a giant water slide helped to liven up plenty of evenings.

Fridays and Saturdays were "party-hearty" times, too. Parties gave students the chance to relax and unwind after the long week at school. Smoking, talking, and getting rowdy with friends helped to lengthen the too-short weekend.

Of course, not everyone was able to go places every Friday or Saturday night. Many juniors and seniors had jobs until 9 p.m., while freshmen and sophomores earned their money babysitting.

▲THIRSTY SKATERS at Skate Junction can find a cool drink waiting for them at the refreshment bar. Danette England counts change while she serves people non-stop on a crowded Friday night.

■"PINBALL WIZARD" Martin Urbach focuses his attention on the whirling, dinging and flashing lights of a pinball machine. "Show Boat," a sort-of "pinball palace" modeled after a Mississippi riverboat, housed 150 pinball machines.

▲SHOPPING IS A FAVORITE ACTIVITY among Walnut students, and nearby Puente Hills \tall provided ample stores to shop and work in. During the holiday season, the entire mall was alight with shimmering decorations.

▲ GETTING EXPERIENCE and making money are two of the reasons why students like Kari Douglas give up their free time to work. "Mall Photos," in the Puente Hills Mall, was where Kari worked, sorting and finding pictures.

AIR MAIL DELIVERIES

Dear Santa,

Dress up in the layered look when you make your rounds to Walnut. The switchy weather changes from hot to cold to rainy then hot again. We can't decide whether we should wear our summer cottons or our wool blends. Bring your Timex too, because the clocks in the buildings have stopped or gone haywire.

Our school clubs took advantage of Christmas by promoting fund raisers. Being in Girls' League meant selling stocking stuffers in October. Because of fire hazards we were not allowed to have Christmas trees in the class rooms, but for home use, Christmas ornaments could be ordered from the Choral department. Do you like the smell of pine? The drill team was selling fresh wreaths and garlands. If you haven't wrapped your presents you could still buy wrapping paper from the girls' basketball teams.

If you were here, you could have gone caroling with the C.S.F. (California Scholarship Federation) or the French club. C.S.F. visited the Friendly Village; the French club sang at Clara Baldwin's convalescent home. A small party was arranged for the clubs afterwards.

Non-Christians had complained about the exposure of Christmas related subjects. For that reason, the administration had to be more discreet in what was mentioned to the students, but this affected the elementary schools more than high school students. The Choral department and the band still sang and played Christmas music. "We are making a Christmas show to bring families closer together, not to convert them into Christians," defended music director, Mr. Larry Cline.

Vacation begins one week later than the previous year. One drawback to that situation is that we have little time to do Christmas shopping. However, we do get one week to enjoy the beginning of the New Year.

R-r-r-ring! Bells are ringing, Santa. This is the last class for the day. That means no more school. We have to leave now. Cookies will be waiting for you just in case you're hungry or maybe one of your reindeers needs some fuel. Say hello to Mrs. Claus and the elves for us. Merry Christmas and have a Happy New Year!

HAVE DONKEYS, WILL TRAVEL

The man who played "God" in Walnuts' annual Donkey Basketball game was Chuck Scott the donkey trainer. In his red and white referee uniform, trainer Scott maneuvered his donkeys to narrow the difference of the scores in the faculty verses the varsity football game. With the score of 30-28 in favor of the students, some people still thought it was boring but Beth Gentle commented, "It was alright."

Paid for the their job, the donkeys earned over $700 for the evening while the varsity football team profitted $900 from this fund raiser. Ticket sales were low because there was a lack of salesmen, (the varsity football players). The usual four to five weeks time span for ticket sales narrowed down to two weeks because of the prolonged Christmas vacation. The football players selling the most tickets earned the privilege to play in the game.

The participants, faculty volunteers and the top ticket sellers, adopted nicknames and wore costumes to add comedy to the event. During the game, however, the players found it more comfortable to disrobe into shorts and T-shirts.

"With experience you know which donkeys to ride," commented "Jolly Green Giant" Mr. Mike Wendt, who had played Donkey Basketball once before. Some of the donkeys were trained to stay under the basket while others were taught to trot and buck across the court. Players like "Superteacher" Jack Betts and "Raggedy Ann" Scott Brown who chose the buckers often rolled off their donkey and greeted the floor with a thud.

The crowd began to leave after the game while the announcer tried to encourage them to stay for the award ceremonies. Less than half of the audience stayed to watch the football players being awarded a plaque with a painted donkey face. Carrying the donkeys away, the truck departed bearing the message, "Have donkeys, will travel!"

TALENT FLOODS FAIRY TALE

Any fairy tale lover remembers the story of "The Princess and the Pea." But few students knew the real story until the drama, choral and band departments presented, "Once Upon A Mattress." This musical-comedy, presented at the end of February, featured the acting debuts of many choir members and the singing debuts of many Thespians.

"The spring musical is, traditionally, the big play that everyone in the school should get involved with," commented the show's director, Mr. Mack Gilliland. "Unfortunately, this has not been the case in the past. However, after seeing the extent of talent and the number of people that tried out (approximately 50), I can truly say that the spring musical has finally found its proper place at Walnut. 'Once Upon A Mattress' has given the drama and musical departments the recognition and respect that they deserve."

A light and whimiscal fantasy, the show was widely attended by students at all of its performances. The starring role, a "shy" girl named Winnifred, made Carol Burnett famous after she played it in the original Broadway show in 1959. Ms. Burnett's counter-part in the Walnut production, Lorraine Chamberlain, stated, "I loved doing this part because it was so crazy. Deep down inside, I'd always wanted to be what Winnifred was — fun and unafraid to be what she wanted. It was the perfect part for me."

The actors rehearsed an average of 11 hours a week, singing and blocking (moving on stage) musical numbers and reading lines. Remembering lines was a hard job for most of the principle parts. For example, Laura Allen, who played Queen Aggravain, the "meanest queen in the kingdom," had 94 lines to memorize, with one five minute long monologue.

Set building and costume making also consumed much time. Mr. Gilliland's stagecraft class built the complicated set. Thirty-five hours were spent building the revolving set, which housed four rooms, and the moat. For the most part, the actors made their own costumes, although some were supplied by the drama

But for the actors, the hours they stayed after school were well spent. Friendships were made and good times were had. As Julie Babishoff put it, "I sure love the applause!"

"WITH AN F-R-E-D," sing the ladies-in-waiting (Laura Dickey, Julie Babishoff, and Gretchen Mark) and knights (Greg Boyd, David Ducharme, and Mike Amend) to the newly proclaimed lovers, Princess Winnifred (Lorraine Chamberlain) and Prince Dauntless (T. A new name, a small turn-out, no dinner, and a famous face befell the annual Girls' League Christmas (oops! Winter) Formal, held at the El Prado Country Club in Chino. Because of conflicts with the third round C.I.F. football game, the original date of the Christmas Formal, November 30th, was changed to January 25th. Accordingly, the name of the dance was changed to the Winter Formal.

Unfortunately, January 25th was also the date of a basketball game with archrival, Rowland. Therefore, none of the basketball players and to the surprisingly low turn-out of only 150 couples. Explained Ms. Chris Gillette, Girls' League advisor, "I'm not sure what the reason was for the low turn-out. However, I do know that all the people who went had a great time. For the first time, there was enough room for everyone to dance."

In contrast to previous Formals, no dinner was served before the dancing began. This caused the price of the tickets to go down to $15.00 per couple for hors d'oeuvres and dancing, while allowing couples to eat at their favorite restaurants. However, many students viewed this new policy as a disadvantage. Marty Renner few of the pepsters were able to stated, "Their plan to lower the cost and so did he." attend the Formal. Confusion over sort-of backfired because it still cost the changed dates also contributed $15 to $20 to go out to a nice restaurant."

For those who attended the dance, a special treat was in store because. Cindy Becker had quite a date that night. Herve Villechaize, who played "Tatoo" in the television program, "Fantasy Island," escorted Cindy to the Formal. As Cindy described it, "I had to keep it a secret from everyone so that there wouldn't be a bunch of photographers at the formal." Cindy's mother was an employee of Herve's and he and the Beckers were good friends. "So I just decided to ask him," continued Cindy. "That night, he came to pick me up in a chauffered limosine and everything. It was just fantastic! I had a great time

Fine Arts

FINE ARTS (fin) (ärts) Those arts which seek expression through beautiful or significant modes; specifically sculpture, drawing, painting, engraving, and poetry. 1. human ability to make things, creativeness. 2. skill. 3. any specific application of skill. 4. creative work and its general principles of making things that have form and beauty.

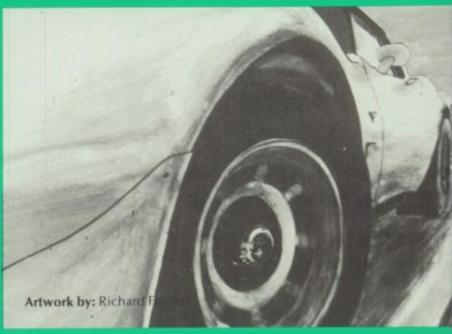

The world's widest application of skill to arts and crafts make the artisan the ruler of his imagination. By using natural ability and/or learned artist expresses fine arts.

skills, the artisan controls the size, shape, color, and meaning of his selfexpression. Being bold, with feeling, the craftsman forms an object of fine art.

The making of an artifact takes time and patience. Mental fatigue tends to slow down an artist's creativity, but it will rarely stop him. To have completed a work of art shows strength, loyality, courage, compassion, sympathy, and caring on the behalf of the artisan. This is how an Earth now lay in total ruins. We had survived the devastation and destruction of the nuclear holocaust. An automated rocket was to take us to our new world, a distant planet not unlike Earth. There we would begin to rebuild what was left of the human race. There were five of us left as we boarded the ship. We were all that remained of the once great planet Earth. Each of us climbed into his sleep chamber and closed the hatch. In two years we would awake to see our new home.

Out of the window, we could see our new world. Beautiful and blue, like the one we left years ago. Tall mountains and green valleys, long flowing rivers that stretched across the face of the planet. Upon impact our ship was split in two. We were thrown into unconsciousness. When we awoke, we found ourselves in what seemed like a garden. It was cool and moist. Everything was so green. I couldn't help but notice the huge plants that surrounded us. Giant leaves of lettuce, enormous cucumbers and carrots as big as ourselves. I thought it would be best if we explored this strange land. Without venturing more than a few yards, we came to a barrier. It seemed to be a curved wall made out of china. It started to rain, but it was no ordinary rain. It smelled incredibly like vinegar and oil. Looking up to see where it was coming from, I saw three giant eyes gleaming happily at me. A mysterious voice exclaimed, "Bon appetite"

On the Way Up

Working from Art I to becoming a Special Studies artist was the dream of many Art I students. However, one obstacle on the way up was being able to tackle the beginning skills taught in Art I. Having learned how the color wheel works, how to shade and how to make a basic sketch, the Art I student was ready to move to the next level.

In the Art II class everything that was learned in Art I was reinforced and brought the student to a better understanding of what he had learned. After hurdling Art I and Art II, the student had to decide whether to take drawing or painting, both of which had to be taken before the student could become a Varsity artist.

Once in the drawing class, the student learned how to draw with pencil, pen, oil pastel, conté chalk and completed a scratch board. On the other hand, the student could choose to take painting where he would learn how to paint with tempra, water color, and possibly oils or acrylics.

With all these classes taken, the student became a Varsity artist. Upon teacher approval, the student could take special studies art along with another drawing or painting class.

Being in Special Studies had its privileges and responsibilities. Because there were no set assignments, the special studies students had to have self discipline, direction, and motivation.

With their work cooling down from 910°(f), the ceramic students begin to wonder and hope that their creations would turn out unharmed. The kiln was carefully unloaded and the results of the firing were found. The kilning was a success.

In mid-December, the Ceramics Club had completed making the largest natural gas kiln ever made by Walnut students. Mr. Maynard remarked, "It seemed to take a long time, but now it's done." The kiln was first fired up empty to make sure it worked, so no student work would be accidentally broken in case of a mishap.

The kiln was loaded up, fired, and unloaded two to three times a week to keep up with student production.

Over the past five years, "Saturday Night Live" has become a teenage ritual.

LIVE FROM WALKUT! IT'S SATURDAT! KIGHT!

It's Saturday night, 11:20 p.m. Everywhere one looks, there are no teenagers to be seen. The dance in the gym has yet another 40 minutes until its finish, but suddenly the attendance has dwindled. The same phenomenon has occurred at the skating rink at approximately the same time. Where have they all gone?

Well, it so happened, 95% of them were sitting in front of a television set. Why the late-vigil? Because Saturday Night Live was about to begin.

Over the past five years, Saturday Night Live, has become a teenage ritual. It began when seven young, unknown actors were given a chance to demonstrate their talents. The latenight variety format included rock 'n' roll and comedy, changing hosts and a cast of regulars. The humor was mainly satirical, sometimes irreverent, but it seemed to appeal to the audience and critics alike. As Bill Donner commented, "I find the sadistic humor very funny."

In fact, Live was the highest-rated late-night program in TV history. Because of the success of the show, many of the actors and actresses had received so much individual recognition, they decided to strike out on their own. For many, this meant appearing in specials or movies during the off-season, but for a few such as Chevy Chase, John Belushi and Dan Akroyd, this meant leaving the show altogether. According to a Cayuse survey, 59% of the students felt the show was affected by their departure. Kathy Buchanan commented, "The loss of Chevy Chase, John Belushi and Dan Akroyd has hurt the show. The new Not Ready for Prime Time Players are nothing very original or outstanding." On the other hand Cris Nelson said, "I think there is an opportunity to bring in new talent now." Though many thought there was a difference in the show, only 4% completely stopped watching.

►IMITATING A ZIT John Belushi plays Bluto in the smash movie Animal House. John Belushi and Dan Akroyd broke away from Saturday Night Live to further their careers as the Blues Brothers.

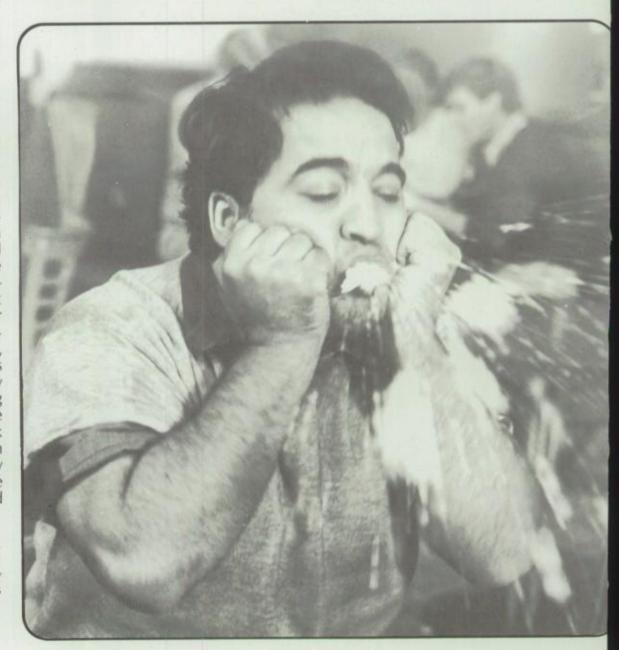

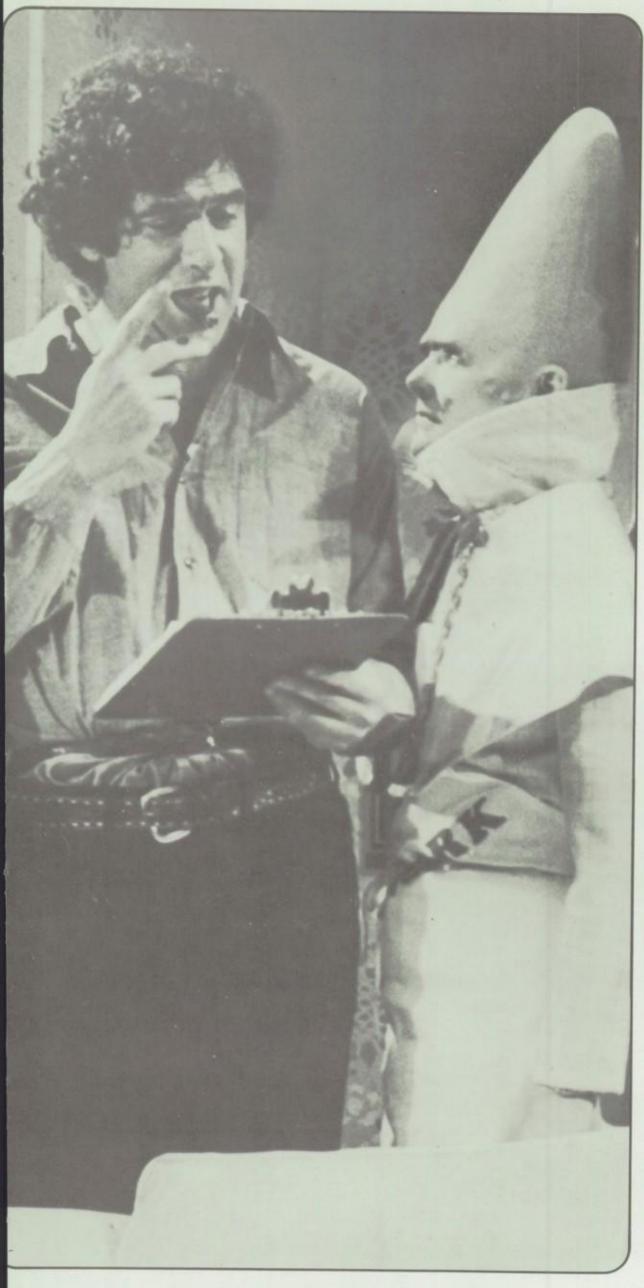

Usually, each individual watches a television show in hopes of seeing his or her favorite. But in the case of Saturday Night Live, 34% of the viewers didn't have a special favorite, preferring the "Not Ready for Prime Time Players" as a group. However, of those expressing a favorite, Gilda Radner topped the list with 38% of the votes. Because of Gilda's popularity, Rossanne Rossanna-Danna was voted second-favorite of the characters and features.

In actuality, the favorite character or feature wasn't even a human. Mr. Bill happened to be a molded piece of clay created by Walter Williams. He made his debut in a 1976 home movie contest sponsored by Saturday Night Live. Mr. Bill had become a regular feature since then, slowly turning a cult into a craze. Every episode brought new cruelities to this clay formation and his lumpy dog Spot. Either by the hand of villainous Mr. Sluggo or by the misguided intention of Mr. Hands, Mr. Bill was decapti-ated, crushed, bent, burned, but mostly mutilated. With each new mini-disaster, Mr. Bill's popularity rose. Fan mail poured in every week and his face adorned T-shirts, pins and even a movie. Throughout Walnut, cries of "Ohhh Nooo! Mr. Bill" could be heard. Out of those owning Saturday Night paraphernalia, 90% possessed something with the Mr. Bill logo.

The prosperity of the show and its performers, coupled with the complaints of the late hour, prompted the network to air The Best of Saturday Night Live. Sue Williams stated, "I watch it more than Saturday Night Live because it's on earlier and it's more likely I'll be home on a Wednesday Night."

The Beatles, of course, broke up when the eogs and ambitions of the individual members became too much for the group. So the question arose was Saturday Night Live dying? Forty-one percent didn't believe so, thinking it would last a long time, where as 22% felt it would only last a few more seasons. As Kim Huttger summarized, "I don't know how long it will last, but as long as its on, I'll be watching it."

▲WALKING THE DOG, Mr. Sluggo always has more fiendish plans for Mr. Bill's dog Spot. Only 13% of Walnut viewers owned any Saturday Night Live paraphernalia.

♠A FAVORITE OF 12% of the audience, the Coneheads have become a regular feature of the Saturday Night format. Elliot Gould, the guest host joins regular Jane Curtain in the skit.

Brokers and Their Business,

The American Heritage Dictionary defines a broker as "One who acts as an agent in negotiating contracts, purchases, or sales in return for a fee." In working with the students, teachers negotiated contracts, better known as grades, in return for a fee, known as a salary.

In the area of finance, teachers were given a 6% salary increase. However, even this increase left them well behind the soaring cost of living, paced by double digit inflation. Concerning this situation, president of the Walnut Valley Educators Association Mr. Charles Sismondo stated, "This shows the dedication of teachers. That is, monitary gains are secondary to the best interests of the students."

WHS employed over 100 teachers, which were divided up into 10 separate departments. The largest department was English, with P.E. and Social Science close behind. Proving ▶ REQUIRED FOR 3 YEARS, English was the department with the most teachers. The largest departments, English, P.E., and Social Science, comprised approximately 44% of the total faculty.

◀HANDING OUT P.E. LOCKS is only one of the duties of the brokers as demonstrated by Ms. Lorelee Miller, Ms. Linda Thomas, and Ms. Judy Manthorne. This was the first year in which students had to pay for their locks. If locks were returned, students had their money refunded. that size has nothing to do with impact, the Fine Arts department had one of the greatest influences on the student body as a whole. Principal Donald Skraba stated, "The Fine Arts department has a profound effect on our student body and community due to their public exposure in the performing arts and in the many art projects in school and outside."

West Coaches the Best

Few people get the first-hand experience of actually getting to coach athletes who participate in the Olympic games. One such person was Mr. Sam West, a member of the United States Track and Field Olympic Development Committee. This is a branch of the U.S. Olympic Committee, and its purpose is specifically for the development of U.S. Olympic teams.

Track and Field is divided into men and women's committees and each event is assigned one head coach. Ed Tucker, the men's national javelin coach, invited Coach West to be his one assistant coach because of his past successes. Their basic responsibility started in 1977 and narrowed down to nine throwers who made the Olympic qualifying standard. The coaches' task was to provide throwing sessions which would best equip the athletes with sound technique.

The major determination for making the Olympic team was the athlete's performance over the past season and his placing in the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union). Some of the athletes participating in the AAU had graduated from college. One problem Coach West saw with this is that work life interfered with the athlete's Olympic training. He commented, "In Russia, for instance, athletes are subsidized by the government. If a person is a javelin thrower, then that is what he does for a career. That's his job. Here in the U.S., athletes are not subsidized by the government. They don't have the opportunity to train as they did in college because they are expected to work also."

Coach West's background in qualifying him to be a coach for the men's javelin throw goes back to his college days, when he attended Cal Poly Pomona. He was an All-American javelin thrower. After he graduated he was still very interested in track and field events. He coached at UCI, Southern California College, Cal State Long Beach, and at MSAC. During this time, Coach West had the opportunity to coach two All-American javelin throwers.

One of the biggest problems Coach West saw with the development of the javelin throw was exposure. He stated that the javelin throw is a "lost art," since only 12 states in the U.S. threw the javelin in high school. Because of this, there were a small number of athletes and coaches in this event. He commented, "One in ten thousand athletes that are in high school track and field make the U.S. Olympic team. The biggest problem in the javelin throw is exposure. There are students on this campus who may have Olympic caliber in the javilin throw, but because of lack of exposure to it, they will never discover their ability. I feel that one of my jobs as a high school track coach is to expose as many athletes to as many events as possible."

▲TEACHING IN AFRICA IN 1972, is one of Coach West's interesting memories. He has also taught javelin technique to the Japanese.

Reaching Across the Desk

"Things have changed." This phrase can apply to many things, one of them being teacher-student relationships. Although the relationship between teachers and students was less formal than it used to be, students still felt a distance between themselves and the teachers. Because of this, students found it difficult to relate to a teacher on a friendship basis.

One barrier was the last name basis of addressing the teacher. As Paulette Alerich stated, "I don't consider my teachers the same kind of friends as the friends of my own age group, just because of the formal way I have to address them."

Working long hard hours with a teacher or coach helped form friendships. Students involved in a sport or activity such as Hoofprint or basketball found that friendships were a natural course. As John Orr commented, "I do think it is possible for teachers to be friends with students. We're working towards a common goal — I notice that the ones who come back to see me are the ones who were on the Inner Light or Hoofprint staff."

Although a teacher's main responsibility was to teach the students, they also managed to get together and do things outside of school. Many departments got together and did their "own thing." The Consumer Science Department, the Foreign Language Department, and the Math Department each got together and tried new restaurants. Several members of the English department met after school every Wednesday for dinner and relaxation. "It's nice to get to know your colleagues outside the school setting - as people, not just as teachers." mentioned English teacher Mr. Larry Holmes.

There were also events held for the entire faculty - a volleyball game, a bowling tournament and the usual Christmas party. The faculty members made sure that whenever they got together it was a "teachers only" affair. During a faculty volleyball game, one teacher almost threw a Cayuse photographer out. The teacher explained, "This is the only time which the teachers get to be by themselves. We don't want students in here." @

Cafeteria food — it's never like home cooking, but serious efforts were made to improve the quality of the food served to students. The person responsible for these changes was Snakateria manager, Ms. Joan Gomez.

Under her direction, a new $9,000 malt machine, a french frier, and a NIECO hamburger broiler were purchased. "All of these machines were purchased for the purpose of improving the quality of food for the student. The cafeteria must absorb the cost," explained Ms. Gomez.

The money was well spent, in the eyes of both students and faculty. "The food's better than last year; the hamburgers have more meat," said senior Rita Shiang. Many faculty members took advantage of their new salad bar.

A new system of ordering lunches was also adopted. Two of the lunches remained "combo" lunches, the burrito and hamburger. The rest were all priced separately. Ms. Gomez believed the system ran well. "At first I didn't like it but now I do. I really think it's great and I'm proud of it." @

Business

The Business Department grew in every way possible. A new class and more sections of old classes were added to the Business curriculum. The new class was Personal Business and Finance, taught by Mr. Larry Studt. In this class, students learned to manage their own financial affairs.

More sections of old classes were added on also. These were one JOBS class, and one Beginning Typing class. A new teacher was added to the Business Department, Ms. Ruth Winchester. "Because of the growing demand of the students, both the number of teachers and classes increased." commented department head, Ms. Joyce Bergstrom.

Consumer Science

One of the smallest departments, Consumers Science grew in neither size nor sections. It only had three members, Ms. Alice O'Keefe, Ms. Nancy Martin, and Ms. Jane Van Wagoner.

The goal of the department was to give students basic skills necessary to live on their own, in a family, and in a marriage situation. Commented Ms. Van Wagoner, "Our department tries to give students consumer values and knowledge in all areas of consumer needs. These skills are necessary for all situations in life."

English

Although it lost two members, the English department gained two in return. The two that were lost were Mr. Scott Wright, and Ms. Joanne Kirkhoff, and in their place Mr. Larry Holmes and Ms. Kim Cleveland were hired.

A new class was added, Cinema, which involved filmmaking. A new spelling program was added, called Concept Spelling. This approach was systematic instead of phoenetic. Mr. Jim Stratton commented, "In this program, the approach is on the English language as a whole, not just individual words."

Big Kids Help Little Kids

▲ GETTING THE KIDS to be quiet is one of the Dora Compos patiently waits for the others to many duties of Ms. Dede Alvarez. Meanwhile, quiet down.

Although many students were aware of the Child Learning Lab, most were not aware of its actual purpose. The ROP Child Learning Lab actually had two purposes. The first and most important was to teach basic skills of pre-school teaching to high school students. The second purpose was to provide a quality program in which the pre-schoolers were allowed to explore and learn through play. The Child Learning Lab tried to provide such an environ-

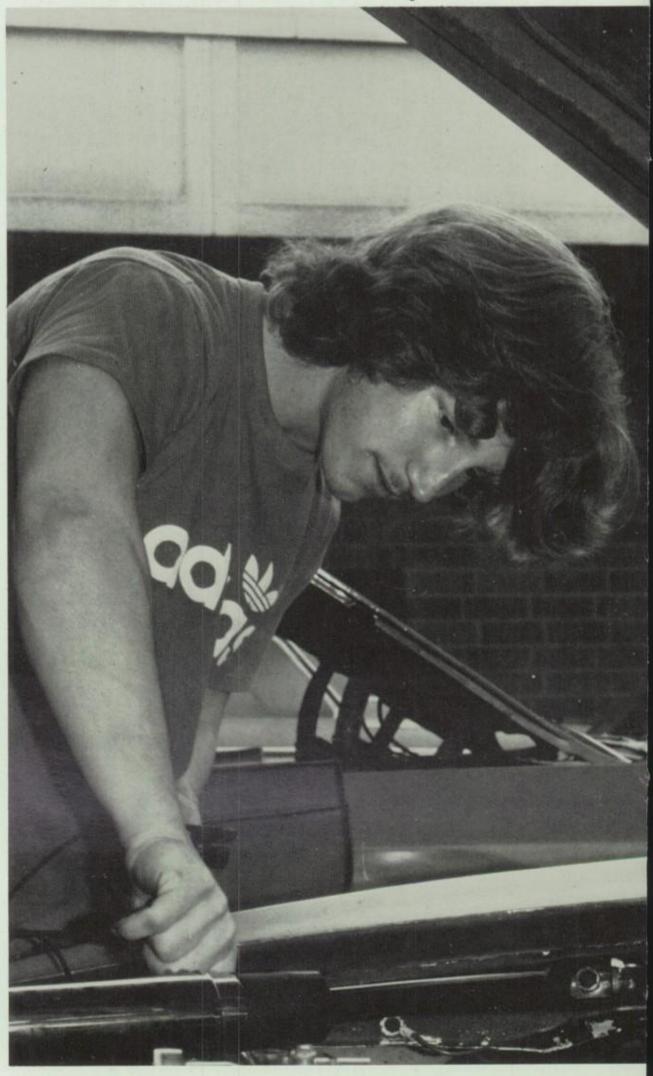

One might ask, "What exactly did students do in this program?" The students usually came in for one period a day, sometimes two, and worked as aides to the teachers. Their duties ranged from learning to supervise activities to cleaning up lunch messes. Although students worked hard, they felt it was well worth their time. Commented Kelly Townsend, "It was one of the best classes I ever took." 🙊

Wanted: Cheap Labor

Can you think of a garage anywhere that would charge you nothing for labor, only for parts? Auto shop was one such place. Teachers, students, or anybody could take their car into Auto Shop and have it fixed for a very minimal fee. The only drawback was that it took a little bit longer because the students only worked on it for one period a day.

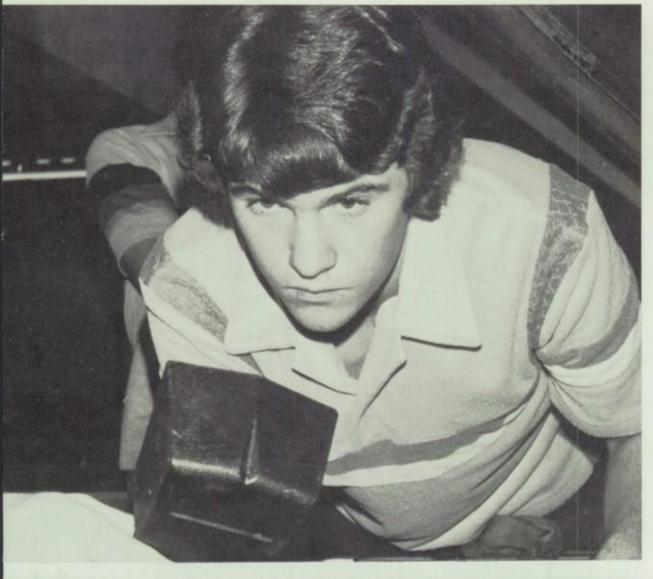

Students just didn't start out working on cars. For the first two years of Auto Shop, it was mostly book assignments. Only in Auto 3 & 4 were students actually allowed to work on "live projects." The Auto Shop program was very structured. It started out with a student who didn't know anything about cars and taught him the basics — safety, automotive theory, tools, and shop practices, just to name a few. As the student became more advanced, he was allowed to work on cars.

Students took this class for various reasons. Commented Mr. Victor Kim (instructor), "I've come across students who take this class just for the sake of taking it. They take it because they like to work on cars." Apparently this was the case with at least one student, Kevin McGill, "I took Auto Shop just for the class. I'm not planning on making it my career, I just take it for my enjoyment."

Fine Arts

The Fine Arts department was several little departments made into a big one. The Fine Arts department consisted of Ceramics, Art, Theater Arts, Instrumental Music, and Vocal Music. Each little department had it's own teacher that was in charge of it. Mr. Robert Maynard was in charge of Ceramics, Mr. Donn Morris taught Art, Mr. Mack Gilliland instructed Theater Arts, Mr. Richard Massaro taught Instrumental Music, and Mr. Larry Cline directed Vocal Music. The department stayed about the same size with no new additional instructors.

Foreign Language

The Foreign Language Department both grew and shrunk in number of classes it contained. New Spanish 2 and German 2 sections were added, although a French 2 section was dropped. The emphasis that the Foreign Language based its instruction on was very simple. Mr. Helmut Birtler (Department Head) stated, "Our aim is to present the foreign language, whichever it may be, with the best instruction in the best manner possible. This may include tapes, films, books, and magazines."

Industrial Arts

The Industrial Arts Department, like the Fine Arts Department, was really like several little departments put together. It consisted of Auto, Electronics, Wood, Metal, Drafting, and Graphics. Each teacher in the department taught one of these subjects except Mr. Guy Roubian, who taught Auto, Metal and Wood.

Students were encouraged to take Industrial Arts classes for career oriented reasons. Department head Mr. Paul Olivier commented, "Our goal is to establish a program which will give the students, upon completion, a job entry level in their field."

Occupations Draw Observations

A class that drew attention both on and off campus was Job Occupational Business Skills, better known as JOBS. Many students were not aware that the JOBS class was one of the six demonstration sites for the whole state of California. This meant that three times a year, teachers from other schools came, observed and got ideas from our JOBS classes.

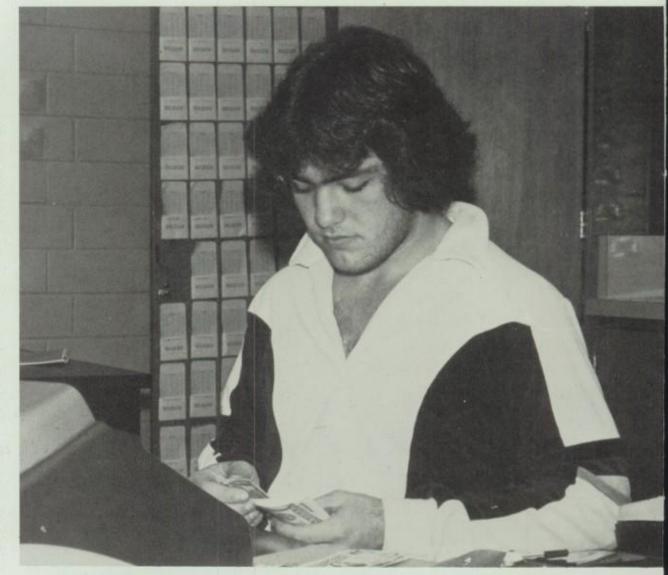

The students in JOBS classes perfected skills such as working an adding machine and written communication. In one JOBS class, there were a possible 16 competency skills to complete. "Competency skills are for everybody," commented Joyce Bergstrom, department head. "These skills are not just for the business student, but for all students."

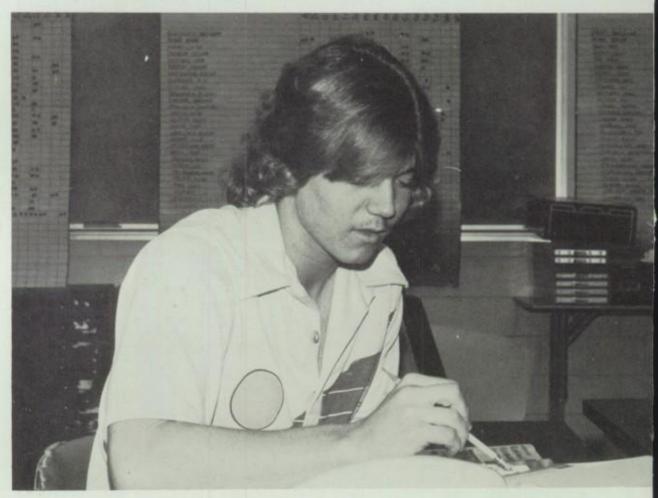

The JOBS class was individualized — every student worked at his own pace. Teacher Karen Cline commented, "I really like the way the class is structured. This way, with the student working on an individualized basis, a 'C' student has an opportunity to earn an 'A' or 'B', because he works at his own pace."

Math

Although the Math Department stayed the same in the number of courses, the number of department members grew, because of higher student enrollment. Three new faces were seen teaching math classes. They were Mr. Dan O'Dell, Mrs. Rebecca Rowles, and Mr. Scott Cassells.

"The Math department's emphasis was placed upon high levels of achievement and positive self images.", according to department head Charles Sismondo. Apparently math interest was on the increase because more students than ever before participated in the Occidental College Math Field Day. This was a special day set aside each year where students from high schools all over Southern California got together and had math competitions.

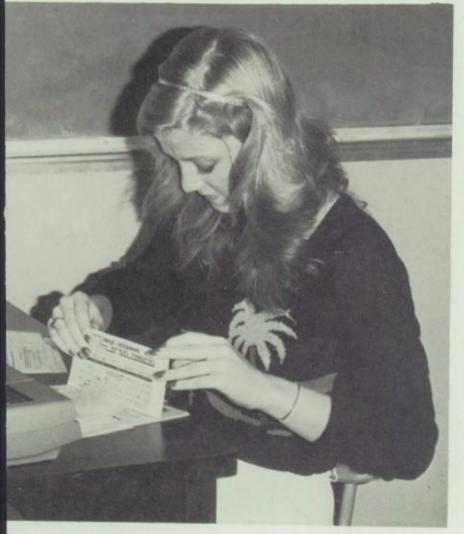

▲COUNTING HIS DOUGH, Jeff Wagner does one of the many tasks required of him in JOBS. Since so many competency skills were required in this class, students had their choice of which order to do them in.

▲ ADDING IT ALL UP, Bret Almberg wonders if the list of numbers is ever going to stop. JOBS class included learning such skills as neater handwriting, working an adding machine, and learning how to fill out a job application.

requirements for JOBS class. Students were given job-entry skills in various career areas.

P.E.

P.E., one of the largest departments already, grew in number of members. Mr. Scott Cassells was added to the department. Contrary to the way most departments grew, P.E. dropped a class, Bowling. "Not enough participation and general inconvenience", were the reasons stated by Ms. Judy Manthorne, department head, for the class being dropped.

One of P.E.'s goals was faculty oriented. Commented Ms. Manthorne, "We strive to promote faculty unity and cohesiveness through faculty recreation nights."

▼MAKING SURE HIS MEANING is understood, Mr. Dave Farley helps a student in his class. Unlike most high school teachers, Mr.

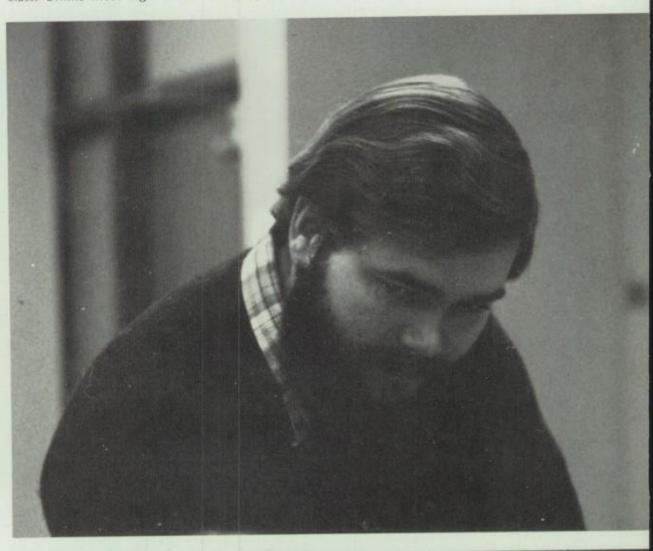

Farley had to be able to teach in a number of different subject areas.

Some students on campus were involved in what was called "Special Education" classes. "Kids who are in these classes are not stupid," emphasized Ms. Christine Gillette. "They are average and above in intelligence, but for one reason or more they have difficulty in learning certain subjects or certain aspects of a subject."

These special education classes had three teachers: Mr. Dave Farley, Ms. Christine Gillette, and Mr. Michael Manchester. Each teacher had his own special class. Mr. Farley taught what was known as Learning Handicapped — Special Day class. In this class the kids learned everything that other kids learn except on a slower basis. They took all the subjects necessary for graduation and stayed with Mr. Farley most of the day.

Another class was the Individual Studies — Learning Disability Group, taught by Ms. Gillette. She also taught every class necessary for graduation. "In all of these classes, the instruction is on an individualized basis. With individualized attention, the student involved has a better chance of learning the material," commented Ms. Gillette.

The class Mr. Manchester taught was the Special Day Class. In this class, for various reasons, the student needed to be with one teacher for most of the day. This class provided the place. The goals of these classes were very simple. As Ms. Gillette stated, "I really want them to believe in themselves as people. Through the means of getting their education, they discover that they are really fine people. Just because they may not read or write as well as someone else, it doesn't mean that they don't have a whole lot to offer the world, because they do." @

Special Classes, Special Teachers

AWRAPPED UP IN HER LECTURE, Ms. Christine Gillette pauses a moment to smile at a student's comment in her Individual Studies class. In addition to teaching classes, Ms. Gillette also advised Girl's League.

Science

The Science Department did nothing but grow. The staff that consisted of six added two new members. They were Mrs. Beth Warren and Mr. Richard Valencia. Many new classes were added also. More I.P.S., Basic Science, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics classes, were some of the sections added to the already large science curriculum.

The emphasis was placed on the development of skills through laboratory experiments and instruction. Students also had a chance to participate in extracurricular activities. One such activity was the National Science Foundation Program, better known as a NSF. This meant going to a college from three to six weeks and learning about a subject of your choice. Andy Nishida, one student who went on an NSF, commented, "It was one of the most valuable experiences of my life."

Social Science

The already large Social Science Department grew even more, with the addition of four new members. They were Mr. Tim Guzik, Ms. Rita Puzo, Mr. Dick Campbell and Mr. Mike Wendt. A new section of SRC was added on also.

The emphasis was placed on personal growth and achievement. Commented Ms. Susan McKinley, "We're trying to get a program where the students not only learn, but get a sense of personal growth from their classes."

It had been more than 100 days since the takeover occurred and there was still no end in sight.

Dateline: November 4th, 1979. Some 60 hostages are taken at the United States Embassy in Tehran, Iran. Militant students demand the return of the exiled Shah of Iran. Riots and pandamoneum ensue throughout the city. The world is shocked and appalled.

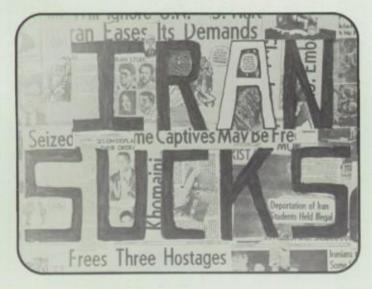

It had been more than 100 days since the takeover occurred and there was still no end in sight. Tension throughout the world had mounted to a dangerous peak. Indeed the global situation appeared grave. How had the Iranian crisis affected Walnut students? What were their opinions on this crucial issue that could dramatically affect their lives? A survey of over 85 students taken by the Cayuse Staff gave an insight to the answers to these and other questions.

When asked whether or not President Carter was handling the Iranian ▲ ALL EYES were focused upon the Aya tollah Khomeini and President Carter during the framan crisis. Time magazine voted the Avatollah (Man of the Year, to the dismay of many Americans.

crisis well, 65% of those polled felt that he was not. President Carter had so far tried only purely diplomatic means of freeing the hostages. For example, he had cut off selling all military equipment to Iran and ordered all Iranian students in the U.S. to have their visas checked to insure that there were no illegal Iranian aliens in the country. As one senior stated, "I think that Carter has been too wishy-washy. He's just not firm enough."

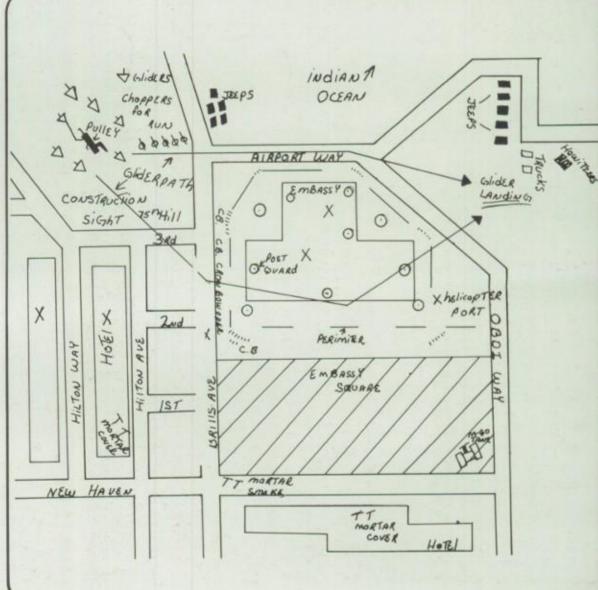

Walnut students appeared uncertain about two key issues. Fifty-five percent of those polled felt that the U.S. was right not to have given the Shah back to Iran at the beginning of the crisis. However, 43% felt that we should have returned the Shah to Iran. Wrote one student, "We should talk to Iran's new president (Bani Sadr), return the Shah and get the hostages back." Others felt that we should have never allowed the Shah to enter the U.S. at all. "We were just asking for trouble," explained a sophomore.

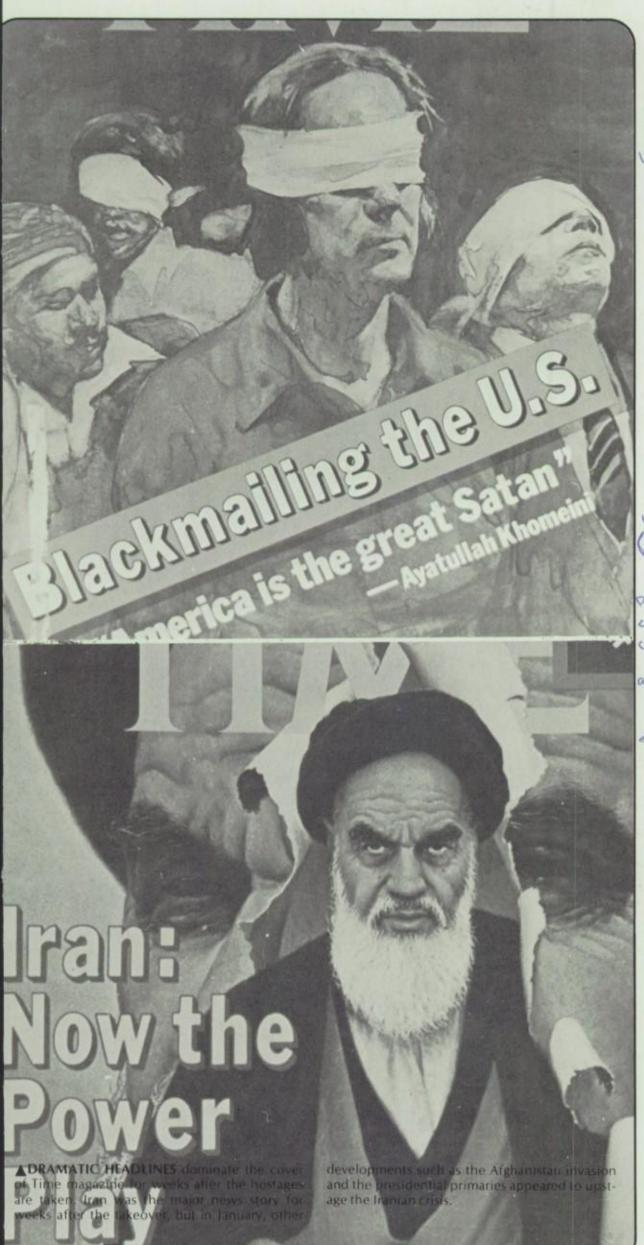

The question of using military force was an emotional one with most students since declaring war would mean that many of the people in high school now would have to go to war later. However, 49% felt that the U.S. should intervene militarily in Iran. A senior stated, "We should declare war on Iran and go in and take back the hostages." On the other hand, 47% were against the use of military force. "I think there must be some kind of agreement that can be reached besides war," wrote a sophomore. Not everyone was as concrete in their answers. Cris Nelson, a senior, explained, "I think we should wait this thing out unless one of the hostages is hurt. Then we have no choice but to intervene militarily."

Preferred Stock

After having been a commodity for three years, the class of 1980 increased in value enough to be considered preferred stock. The fact that seniors were not required to take P.E., were able to leave campus after fourth period and had their own senior Mall were a few of the privileges granted to preferred stock.

Each share of preferred stock was noticeably more expensive than a share of common, underclassman stock because of the fact that a lot more money was invested in each share. Each senior had to pay for cap and gown rental, Grad Night, senior Breakfast and Baccalaureate tickets. These were just a few of the expenses underclassmen didn't have to worry about. "I really never thought about the senior year being more expensive than other years; but with all the end of the year activities, my senior debts and application fees to colleges, it really adds up," stated Laura Simone.

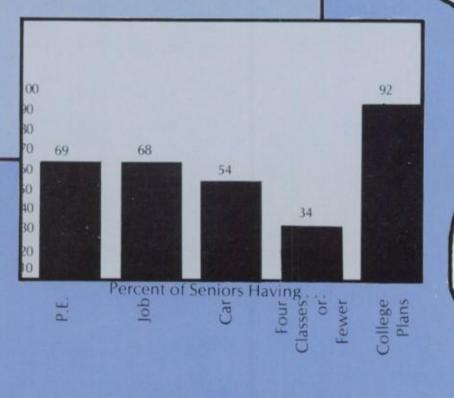

The graph below illustrates five options usually associated with being a senior at Walnut High School. One hundred seniors were polled to represent the majority of the class of 1980. For the first time in Walnut's history, P.E. was not required for seniors. Surprising enough, only 31% of the seniors took advantage of this option. Only 8% of the seniors polled had plans that did not include college. Most of these people had a job waiting for them upon graduation.

The report which follows captures all the significant events in which the senior class was involved. Whether it was Spirit Week or taking the SAT, the seniors were always busy. Committees had to be organized and decisions had to be made concerning future plans.

Slaves: Get 'Em While They're Hot

Many new events were introduced during Spirit Week. Included in the new events were Court Secrets, a slave auction, with a real auctioneer, and Nerd dress-up day. Many people enjoyed the new events as well as the old favorites. Sheila Slattery, Secretary of School Spirit, summed it up, "I liked the new games like the slave auction and the area cram because they got everyone involved, not just a select few."

School decoration was not supposed to be part of the festivities, but it was. Some students decided to decorate the school with business signs, toilet paper, tires and tons of shredded paper which was scattered across campus. When Mr. Skraba threatened to take funds out of the senior treasury to have it cleaned up, students then took it upon themselves to clean it up.

Homework Replaces Gym Suits

For the first time in Walnut's history, those seniors with a heavy class-load had the opportunity to omit physical education from their schedule. Seniors were the only ones to have this privilege.

In order to have P.E. omitted from a student's schedule, he had to file a petition with his counselor at the end of his junior year. The petition had to be filled out, which included a list of all the classes he was going to take in his senior year. A parental signature was also necessary. If the petition was okayed by his counselor, then that student did not have to take P.E.

For some seniors who opted to not take P.E., it meant that they had a chance to take a fourth year of some other course like foreign language, math, science, or business. For others it meant getting out of school earlier to go to work or just go home and

"Lunch? At 10:30?" This was the comment by many seniors when they learned that all seniors had to take their lunch during 4th period which started at 10:30. The reason for this was so that all the seniors would be together at the same time and it would be convenient to have meetings at that time.

Although some seniors didn't have any classes after 4th period, they were supposed to stay through the period. However, some did not.

There appeared to be good and bad aspects about having lunch then. Scott Sallee commented, "I like it because it's not so crowded." Others liked it for other reasons. "I like it because it's better than the twolunch system. You can be with all your friends," said Maggie Kondo. Still others were heard to say that they thought it was awfully early for lunch. Perhaps that period should have been called "Senior Brunch." 🙉

Filling up a thermos and carrying a lunch box is a custom usually practiced by kids in grammar school. Much to the surprise of the rest of the student body, lunch pails became a common sight as a group of seniors began bringing their pails to school daily. Lonny White summed up the opinion of the majority of underclassmen when he stated, "I think carrying a lunch box is a neat thing to do; it sets the seniors apart from the rest of us."

Carrying lunch pails started out as a joke, but as lunch prices got higher these lunches from home came in quite handy. Barbie Veslic carried a lunch pail for more reasons than avoiding expensive lunch prices. "I think carrying lunch pails is a good idea. # Boys Cheer — Girls Smile

Rah! Rah! For five years cheering on the old blue and gold was an all girl activity. In 1974 Jeff Kennedy became Walnut's first boy cheerleader, and for a long time no boy attempted to fill his shoes. Finally Allen York and Jeff Richardson made this attempt, and they became Walnut's second and third boy cheerleaders.

When asked why he wanted to be a cheerleader, Allen York could find no simpler explanation than wanting to promote school spirit. According to head songleader Judy Upham, "Allen and Jeff helped a lot. They really got the crowd going, especially the girls."

Make Up Your Mind!

Decisions! Decisions! There are so many decisions that seniors had to make before graduation. What were they going to do for a living? What college are they going to? What scholarships should they apply for?

Each student had to eventually decide what career they wanted. It was important that they know what classes to take. The information available in the career center helped the students make decisions concerning careers.

There were so many scholarships to apply for. Each student who was interested usually filled out several. The chances were better that they would receive a scholarship if they applied for more than one.

The counselors were always available for help in decision making. Diane Mainhurst stated, "My counselor helped clear up a lot of things about college that I wasn't sure about." 🙉

Testing . . . 1, 2, 3, Testing . . .

During the course of one's senior year there were several important tests that had to be taken. The SAT, the standard setting test and finals were all important

One of the first tests a person considered taking was the Scholastic Aptitude Test, or SAT. There were several different dates on which the tests could be taken, but most counselors advised that the sooner the tests were taken the better chance students had of being considered at the college of their choice. There were also several different locations the test could be taken at, but the majority of Walnut High students chose to take their test at South Hills High.

The achievement tests were mandatory for all students who were planning to go to a University of California. These tests enabled students to be placed in classes according to their ability. The Achievement Tests could also be taken at the same locations and most of the same dates as the SAT.

Finals, the tests everyone dreaded, were a part of every students life, seniors included. Almost every teacher was required to give finals at the end of each semester. Finals were usually a large part of a students grade.

Nancy Long stated, "There are so many tests that I have to take. Every time I finish one I have to take another."

Swedish Persson

Imagine leaving your home where the weather is very cold for some unfamiliar country where the weather is very warm. This kind of extreme change is what Margareta Persson had to bare when she came to our country from Sweden.

Maggie, as her friends call her, comes from a town called Landskrona, population 60,000. Landskrona is close to Copenhagen and Maggie said she often enjoyed a 45 minute fairyboat trip to Copenhagen. Maggie enjoyed bike riding and said she particulary missed the riding since she came to the states. Skiing was another favorite of hers but she didn't go often in the states because of the expense.

Maggie stayed with the Hatch family. Maggie's American Mom and ◆FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENT, Maggie Persson bundled up for a cold day in Sweden, visits with some snow geese. The cold weather in Sweden was extreme compared to the weather here.

Dad, Hugh and Billie Hatch had two sons who graduated from Walnut and also Maggie's older sister graduated from Walnut a few years before. She also stayed with the Hatch family.

Maggie commented that Walnut was much easier than her school in Sweden. In Sweden she took 13 different courses which she attended on different days. Here she took a few history courses, English, and SRC in addition to all the mandatory courses for graduation. Maggie especially enjoyed SRC and was anxious to learn to drive. However, you must be 18 to drive in Sweden so she had a head start.

Maggie really enjoyed her free time in Calfornia. As she put it "I like to be free."

An Unavoidable Hassle

Getting a job is a very important part of some seniors' lives. Earning their own money gave a person a feeling of independence. However, getting a job wasn't that easy.

There were plenty of places to look, but they weren't hiring that often. The first place everyone usually looked was Carl's Jr., McDonald's or perhaps the new Naugles. If they weren't hiring, they'd then have to hit the mall, try to collect a few applications, fill them out, return them and hope for the best. If they were lucky they got called back.

Then, the dreaded interview! "Have you had experience?", they would always ask.

"Well not really."

Then there'd be a few more simple questions. Now all they'd had to do was wait for a call. Some were lucky and got hired, some had to start over again.

It always helped to have connections. Sherry Kendall commented, "Mrs. Karen Cline got me my job at A&N Welding."

Privileges for Many

Front row parking spaces, a mall of their own, and their own lunch period were three privileges that were originally designated for seniors only. That does not mean, however, that seniors were the only ones to take advantage of these privileges.

Some seniors weren't even aware of the parking spaces being for seniors only. "I didn't even know they were only for seniors until I parked there and saw the 'Seniors Only',", stated Kelli Hepler.

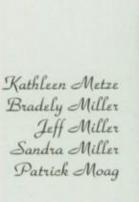

The senior mall was originally built for the seniors but it was not rare to see underclassmen in it. The seniors did not enforce it.

The seniors also had their own lunch period. The purpose was to have a convenient meeting period when all the seniors would be availa-

It was 10:30 a.m. and all the seniors were relaxing at lunch - all the seniors, that is, except Allen York, Bill Donner, Shari Parker and Theresa Thoemmes. And who were they you ask? None other than the officers for the senior class. Their advisors were Mr. Kuns, Mrs. Tomooka and Mrs. Bohren, which explains why all their meetings were held in the science team room.

Preparing for graduation was the main objective of the officers and the advisors. The class leaders formed committees with one office in charge of each. Some of the different committees were baccaluareate, senior breakfast and grad night.

When asked if he enjoyed being senior vice president Bill Donner stated, "I guess it's o.k. There's a lot of work and responsibility involved, since we have meetings twice a week. One really good thing about it is it looks great on college applications."

A Different Type of Spirit

"What's it spell? Victory! O.K. everybody quiet down. The winners of the class competition are the seniors!" A wild spell of clapping and cheering followed this announcement as the seniors celebrated yet another competition victory. In the last four years the class of 80 had come out on top in these competitions more than any other class.

The senior class had always been thought of as a rather wild bunch. When asked his opinion Mr. Jim Polite commented, "They're really a neat group of kids, but sometimes they do things that get out of hand." For example, the class of 80 was the class that almost didn't have a prom. It was also the class that decorated the school one night, much to the surprise and anger of school administrators.

Because of their rather unruly reputation, many seniors felt that many of their privileges had been ripped off. As Mark Friend put it, "We never get to do anything anymore. Even when we wanted to have the all boy cheering section, the rowdy rooters, they said no."

"If I had to stay in school for another semester, I'd never make it. I'd probably spend all my time in my counselor's office for ditching everyday!" This remark, made by Kim Crites, summed up the opinion of the majority of seniors who planned to graduate early. After attending school for thirteen years, these semester graduates had simply had enough.

In every other year the number of seniors who graduated early ranged from between twenty and thirty. The class of '80 had almost twice the amount of early grads as any other graduating class. There were many different explanations for this increase.

For one thing, the senior class was larger than any other graduating class. Also, Walnut was more overcrowded than ever before. As Diana Nissel put it, "I just have other things I'd rather do. I'm gonna get a job and take night school at Mount Sac." No matter what the reason, fifty-five seniors left Walnut on January 25, 1980, determined not to return again until graduation.

Eight Is More Than Enough

It was a cold and windy January afternoon. The school was empty and it seemed like it was going to rain. The only sign of life was a few teachers hustling over to the multi-purpose room. Slowly one car entered the parking lot, followed closely by another and another until the whole parking lot was full of cars.

Back at the multi-purpose room Mr. Gunn was trying to keep some order, "W's get in one line, everybody else sit down." The air was filled with one major complaint. "Why didn't they offer any senior social studies classes fifth period? My schedule is all messed up." Kelly Hepler was overheard saying, "the people who graduated early are lucky they don't have to go through this again."

The members of ASB were sitting in one group throwing dirty looks at the administrators. According to several ASB members, the decision that they not be able to register early second semester was not a popular one.

Then slowly, one by one, the cars started to leave the parking lot. Once again the school was empty, nothing remained except the rain.

Many he irs were spent, many applications were filled out and sometimes many tears were shed during the lengthy process of choosing, applying and getting accepted to a college. Except for a lucky few who already knew what college they were going to attend and where the money was coming from, selecting and finding the money for the "perfect" campus wasn't a simple task. As Kevin Motschall put it, "It's hard to decide what college you want to go to, and once you decide, there are about twenty tests to take, twenty forms to fill out and what seems like twenty years to wait before you find out if you're accepted."

For the seniors who were college bound, money seemed to be the biggest problem. A year of college, depending on the type, could cost up to six thousand dollars. Since the average student didn't make much more than $3.20 an hour, this caused quite a problem.

Parents were generally willing to shoulder some of the cost, but they expected their kid to help as much as possible. This meant that a lot more forms had to be filled out as seniors applied for any grant or scholarship that could be found. For those who felt they weren't eligible for any grants or scholarships, the only alternative was to hit the job market, save every penny and hope to get a student loan once school started.

FINANCIAL AID SEMINARS are very helpful for seniors Todd Pierce and Beverly Bell. These seminars, held in the career center, explain to the college bound student what type of financial aid is available and what the eligibility requirements are.

Senior Standouts have been a tradition since the beginning of the CAYUSE.

In some of the previous years secrecy was a part of the senior standouts, but that didn't last for long. Soon the news of the winners was all around school. Linda Brown commented, "Everybody knows about the senior standouts. It's all over campus."

Ballots were passed out during senior lunch and collected during that same period. The ballots were then counted and the winners were informed. As soon as the winners were informed, word started to get around. Once the picture was taken, the only thing left was for the winners to wait for the yearbook.

Awards, prizes, medals, recognition, scholarships; call them by any name, they still mean the same thing: something given in return for service on merit or as the result of judging; anything worth striving for; any enviable or highly valued possession. In Webster's definition an award seems to be something one is working for, almost like a goal. For most high school students, getting through day by day seemed a hard enough obstacle. As a freshman, students didn't think to work hard in school just to get an award at the end of their senior year. That was why these awards were given, to honor such students who did excel for personal reasons and no other.

Showing outstanding achievement in the area of social science, Lori Lowe received the Gemco Award. This went to only one person in the school. She received $25.00 and the chance to go on to further competition, in the area of economics. When asked how she felt being the recipient she replied, "I feel honored for being chosen for this award."

Having the administration recognize good students was something to be proud of, but when one's peers did too, it was a real honor. The Daughters of American Revolution award won by David Lewis was voted for by the senior class and the administration alike This award was sponsored by the Pomona Chapter of the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution). David went on to further competition by taking a test on American and California history. The national winner received $2,000.

For college-bound students, the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT) was good practice for the real thing, the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test). The PSAT was usually taken to test one's self before the official SAT was taken. For three students, Paul Horn, Kevin Jones and Mike Simone, scores were so high in the PSAT that they were named Commended Students in the 1980 Merit Program. Fathia Sessing was also Commended in the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students. These students were compared with others throughout the country and could increase their chances for college admissions and financial aid.

One didn't have to be a "brain" to achieve recognition. Many students felt that extra-curricular activities were just as important as academic work. Those active students became recipients of the Who's Who Among High School Students award. This recognition was given to 20 juniors and 35 seniors. Many of these same students received the honor of being in the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

The trophies, plaques and certificates were taken home and displayed in the study or living room. But the real award came when the students felt their hard work had a purpose and they had achieved something worthwhile.

ECOGNITION AT LAST

For many seniors, getting through high school with just C's and D's was good enough. Others tried to do the best job they could by studying and earning high grades. This hard work did not go unnoticed, however, as many of these hardworking seniors received awards for their outstanding cholastic achievement.

To a senior involved with CSF, earning the title of "Life Member" vas an important goal. Karen Linlemulder explained, "Being a life nember looks good on my college record". To earn the honor of life member a CSF member had to achieve four semesters of ten grade points, with one of those semester being in the senior year.

The Bank of America departmental awards were awarded to 14 outstanding seniors. Four of these seniors were awarded plaques and the remaining ten received certificates. The winners were determined by each department. Every department nominated three people. The Scholarship committee then reviewed the nominations and chose a winner for each category. The grade point average and the number of credits earned in the area of nomination were the basis on which the winners were chosen.

When the awards were announced many seniors were envious of those who received them, wishing that they had studied a little more or taken time to bring their grades up. For those seniors who did receive awards, it proved that the old adage, "hard work pays off," is true.

"Oh my God! No not rain! Not through the ceiling!"

DIARY OF

"Abandon ship, abandon ship," I yelled to my classmates as we left our now dark and deserted classroom. I didn't know when we would see this room again. We held out as long as we could, fighting this thing with every means possible. We fought a long, hard battle but it was an impossible situation. Destined to lose, we packed up our books and supplies and ventured out into the cold, wet weather. We were being evacuated to the multi-purpose room. Many other classes from the B building were there. I hadn't realized how out-of hand this thing had gotten, but then I guess there was no stopping THE RAIN!!!

I remember the peaceful days before it came. Entering a dry class and sitting on a dry chair. Not having to worry about being dripped upon. Everything seemed so calm. Then it started - an occasional winter storm, bringing with it light rain. Each time it would rain, the ceiling would start to leak. I can still see the fear in my teacher's eyes the day he told us the news. "Everyone quiet please, I - I, uh, I have an announcement to make." His voice cracked and we realized the seriousness of what he was saying. "The rain we had," he paused a long moment building anticipation. "The rain we had has leaked through the ceiling. We can expect it to get worse as the winter goes by." "Oh my God! No, not rain! Not through the ceiling!" I screamed. The girl next to me fainted. Panic swept through the room. What were we going to do? Should we leave now? Should we stay and fight this terrible thing? No one knew what to do. Silence replaced panic. All eyes were on our teacher. With his guidance, we as a group decided what to do. It was our classroom, and we weren't going to give it up without a fight. It would be a tough battle, but we would stick with it until we beat this thing.

▲ CRIES OF DESPAIR AND FEAR are heard above the rising water. Many classes abandoned their rooms for a drier environment.

NEW SUPPLIES ARRIVE to help stop the rain. Custodians were busily working on the roof to get the situation under control.

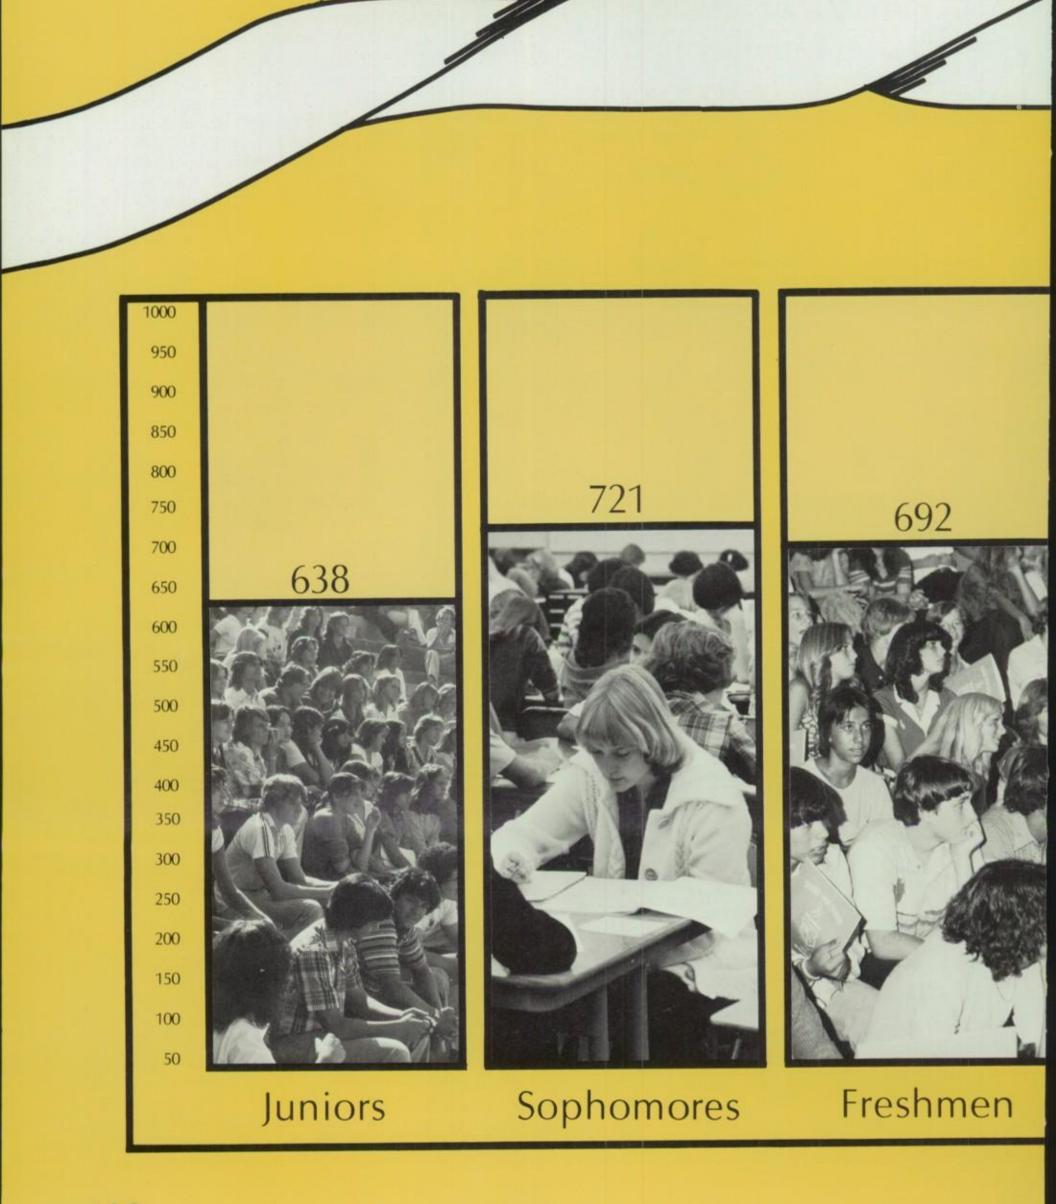

The winter storms were now coming in full force. The war had begun, each rainstorm a battle in itself. Every new raindrop caused a new leak in the ceiling. We retaliated each time by putting buckets and trash cans under them. The final battle was soon to come. An incredibly large storm from Hawaii was due any day. A series of storms from the north were also on the way. Heavy rain was inevitable. This was it, either we win this one or give up our room to the rain. We prepared ourselves by getting buckets, trash cans and anything else together that would hold water. The strom came in, it was as big as predicted. Many inches were expected before it would be over.

The rain came down in buckets. Pouring into the classroom from every crack it could find. Streaming down the walls and even coming in through the molding around the door. Water was everywhere. It seemed like we couldn't stop it. It was time for us to bring out our special weapon: custodians. The custodians were busy on the roof laying down plastic sheets, draining water and bringing in new supplies to try and stop the rain. It was all in vain, though. The rainstrom was too much for us. Water was now coming in through the lights. There was a chance they would explode. The carpet was like a lake. You couldn't enter the room without an umbrella. It was definite, we would have to leave.

Admitting defeat, we left our class-room to the rain. We had lost the war, or had we? We still had the ultimate weapon on our side — time. Time would make everything all right. Time would pass and so would winter, taking the rain with it. Then when dry weather came, our class-room could be reroofed. We'd leave for now, but soon we would be back. Eventually we would win. We would conquer. We would destroy — THE RAIN!!!

Common Stock

Shareholders of common stock are the investors who take a chance in the loss or gain of their money. The undergrads, in turn, were considered common Stock in that they were the majority. What they did during the time they were here affected the outcome and profit percentages of the corporation.

Money-oriented investments made by undergrads were very few. However, without realizing it, many students invested themselves in school. They provided the school with the spirit and support necessary to make the corporation successful. The bonuses were the feelings of achievement and accomplishment in learning.

A Sign of the Times

Early Halloween morning before school began, the areas near the Art and Science buildings were decorated with different signs, chairs and playground equipment. Painted on the grass and on a billboard sign roped up against a tree were the letters, HUBE. These letters were very puzzling to many students.

The strangest thing was a large HUBE sign above the baseball diamond. Some thought it meant Hunington Beach, others said it was a protest against all the school rules. Things like the blue lines, the proctors, closed campus, phones in the locker rooms, hall passes to the library and the trash problem. But there were many other interpretations

By the end of the day, two of the large white letters had been blown down by unusually strong winds. It was thought that members of the junior and senior classes were responsible, but it was never confirmed. Later in the day some underclassmen were going to set the fallen letters back up, but they were rerouted by Mr. Gunn.

Moving Seniors Out

In the past, more seniors and fewer juniors were going out for Varsity sports. Now the junior class was threatening the competition. This was mostly due to the seniors' lack of spare time. Kevin Jones replied to the question, "Why didn't you go out for Varsity sports?" by saying, "I just didn't have the time to play and I had to go to college over the summer."

Each year more and more students were seeking their financial freedom and seniors were no exception.

For obvious reasons the juniors usually dominated the Junior Varsity sports group. But the especially talented juniors were promoted to Varsity.

On Varsity football, out of thirty-nine players there were twenty juniors and nineteen seniors. In the past years the Varsity team was usually controlled by the senior class. In Varsity volleyball it was almost the same story. Out of ten players, four were juniors, four were seniors and two were sophomores. Three of the four juniors were starters. Even without the volume of seniors in Varsity teams; the juniors contributed to the standards which the athletic department required.

Preping for the Prom

Being a class officer was a task most students would rather see someone else do. Many students didn't realize the work that went on within the quartet of Kari Cook, Gina King, Renee Martinez, and Nancy Renne, aided by Ms. Sue McKinley, Ms. Carlene Brown and Mr. Jim Reda. Throughout the year they planned activities such as the balloon sale, art show, horse show, Sadie Hawkins dance and especially the Prom. All the events besides the Prom were to raise money for the best Prom possible.

The group had meetings each week in hope of getting ideas for raising money.

Many students have wondered just why a person would want to be in such "a hard-working" group of people. Gina King explained, "I just like doing things for my class and helping it be a great year for all us juniors."

Many know him as "the guy with the bag," but Doug Root is much more than a "brain." He is rated in the top ten in the state and is one of the top forty in the nation in competitive chess.

Doug first became interested in chess when he was ten. When his cousin beat him in a game of chess, he vowed to beat him the next time he saw him.

Since then Doug has been in over fifty tournaments and finished sixteenth out of three hundred and fifty players. Doug has played over fifteen people at one time. He has also played five people at once while blind-folded.

But Doug's spare time isn't devoted to chess alone. He is also involved in Science Club, German Club, C.S.F., Band and in his Christmas quartet. Doug also likes tennis, but he says he has little time to play.

He says he attributes all his success in chess and education to hard work and determination.

The Longest Day?

AMOST STUDENTS HAVE GONE HOME, or to their jobs by ninth period. Most students staying during ninth period were the athletic participants and the I.P.S. students.

"Nine Periods!" "We'll be here all day!" It was the common reaction of most students when the district decided to add another period to the seemingly endless day. An eight period day was long, but a nine period day was like eternity. The extra period was added for the benefit of the science department. It had no effect on any of the other departments. The extra period took pressure off of teachers who had to teach full classes of basic science students.

In 1981 the district planned to use eighth and ninth period more by offering more shop and industrial arts classes.

Most juniors didn't stay for ninth period but instead went home to jobs around seventh period.

Looking for the Light

Many clubs and groups on our campus were involved in activities ranging from going to Europe in the French club to beach parties in yearbook. These clubs were all stimulating to the mind as well as the body, but clubs like Campus Life were stimulating to the spirit. On a given day, this group met at a planned spot, usually someone's home or on campus. Each meeting started off with its usual fellowship and prayer. In alternation, the group had a fun week twice a month as well as a time of worship twice a month.

According to youth director Keith

King, Bible Studies could save hundreds of students on campuses all over the United States from problems of depression, alcohol, drugs, and just pressures of every day life. Each day may pose a new problem in one of their lives, but these students felt there was always someone there to talk to. The counselors of Campus Life groups didn't try to pressure other students with answers to their every question, but tried their best to give them guidance, advice and an honest opinion. The final decision was left up to the student seeking help.

The meetings weren't all fire, hell, and damnation. The members had fun and recreation on beach trips, car washes, ski trips, and skate parties. The people in Campus Life believed they as a group helped each other to be even more prepared for the world after high school. Rondalin Bramwell explained why she was in Campus Life by saying, "I just like fellowship with my friends and growing into the Lord. Growing, the basic aspect in any adult Christian's life. ## Decisions, Decisions

"I've made it through 11 years of school. Now I'm expected to start making serious decisions for the future. Should I graduate one year early? Should I carry a full load of classes and try to hold a job at the same time?"

These were thoughts that passed through a few junior's minds. If the person graduated early, going to college, vocational school, or out onto the job market were more options available. If the choice was made to tackle both a full load and a job, the student had to balance grades against hours of work. But how was a person supposed to make intelligent decisions with so much at stake?

Counselors and administrators were available to help juniors start looking ahead. They had advice and experience to offer. Principal Don Skraba said, "There are between seven and ten juniors graduating this year." Weighing the good and bad, Mr. Skraba strongly disagreed with early graduation for reasons of "unpreparedness."

Did having a job necessarily mean a drop in grades? In some cases it would but in others there were school obligations to be considered. Theresa Thompson stated "I was just to busy with school obligations and other activities.

Rats Infest Campus

The Phantom Rats was a group of three young men in unusual costumes who first appeared in 1979. The following Cayuse interview was conducted in January, 1980.

Cayuse: Where did the idea of the Phantom Rats come from?

Rat #1: It was my idea. I wanted to think up something we could do that wouldn't hurt anybody and wouldn't go against the school rules. So I came up with the idea slowly, piece by piece. I wanted something that we could remember when we're out of school.

#2: It's also something we can do for excitement. It's really suspenseful.

Cayuse: For you or for the other people?

#1: For us. I think it's more entertainment for us than for the other people. But they like it, too.

#2: It's a good release.

#1: Yeah, it's like riding Colossus is the best way I can describe it.

#3: Your adrenalin gets up right before you get chased.

Cayuse: When did the Phantom Rats first appear?

#1: It was at one of the last football dances.

#3: The last football dance we hit three times.

Cayuse: You went into the dance three times?

#3: No, we couldn't get in, but it was still a success.

#2: The first time we had a lot of problems.

Cayuse: Like what?

#1: We thought it was going to be cool. We ran over to the gym, and the first time we got there it's, "Kill the Rats!" People had seen the posters,

Cayuse: Were you afraid they'd unmask you?

#1: No, we were afraid we were going to get hurt. There were a lot of them.

Cayuse: What do you do when you make an appearance?

#1: The first time it was just running because we didn't have time. But the next time we struck, we struck from 8 to 11 times. This was during a basketball game. We did dances outside the gym and ran through the gym.

Cayuse: Have you made any "strikes" outside of school?

#3: After we made our second escape out of the area, we came back and found a square dance at Suzanne. So we went inside and square danced with the old people.

Cayuse: Do you have any limits as to what you'll do?

#1: We never do any damage and we never insult people or anything.

#3: We're just there to have a good time.

#2: And provide some entertainment.

Most teenagers have been told at least once that their high school years will be the most fulfilling years of their life. A survey given to the students by the Cayuse seemed to indicate that the reality of high school life did not fulfill the average teenager's expectations. The survey was given to approximately 400 sophomores and seniors, less than one sixth of the total student body. However, the results pointed out certain trends in the use and abuse of drugs and alcohol.

While the age difference between the sophomores and seniors surveyed was not great, the seniors tended to be more experienced with the use of drugs than the underclassmen. For example, according to the survey taken, 66% of the sophomores stated that they did not smoke marijuana or drink alcohol. As one anonymous sophomore commented, "I don't smoke or drink 'cause it'll mess my life up with more problems than I need." In contrast, the survey showed that 60% of the seniors did use both alcohol and marijuana alcohol?" Many students gave answers such as, "I enjoy it," "I have a great time when I'm blitzed," and, "It gets me through the day." But many of these students stated that they did not know why they enjoyed it or why they felt the need for help in getting through the day.

Authorities on the subject claim that peer pressure and its underlying motives are a major cause of adolescent drug and alcohol use, the most important motive being the student's need to be part of the crowd. At the high school age, the students look for acceptance from their peers, often trying to please peers before pleasing themselves. However, pleasing peers sometimes means, "taking a hit of a joint," "popping that first tab of acid," or "scoring some brew." Fifty percent of the students indicated that when they did use these drugs, they were accompanied by friends.

Sixty-one percent of those surveyed commented that they had used or were still using many types of drugs and alcohol, while, on the other hand, 39% stated they would never even consider trying the unnatural highs. Stated one WHS student, "I just get high off of life itself."

According to researchers on teenage drug abuse, 68% of these teenagers turn to drugs out of curiosity or in an attempt to escape from boredom or other problems. One student summed it up by saying, "I do it because there's nothing else to do, and I'm hooked."

Students do not usually intend to become victims of drugs such as pot, hash, and cocaine, but once that first step of popping a pill or snorting some coke is taken, the reality of turning back seems worthless and impossible. The addict usually turns to a life of crime to support his craving for drugs. Often the victim will not stop for anything. For instance, many addicted teenagers will actually steal money from their parents to satisfy their desires.

In concluding, the Cayuse report on teenage drug abuse, the results indicated that teenagers would go to all measures to fulfill their need for acceptance among their peers. The Cayuse was not trying to prove that every student at WHS is a drug addict or alcoholic, it just happens to be a popular problem. @

I'll Have the Usual

If your last name began with S, P, or L, you were one of the luckier sophomores. You were one of the first to register. At fall registration all of the sophomores were seen in approximately the same areas. Most rushed to the SRC (State Requirement Course) teachers first, accepting any open spot they might have. Then they'd build the rest of their schedule around that class.

Robin Lindley, one of the more fortunate sophomores, stated, "I didn't have any trouble getting my classes, but all of my friends did, so we didn't end up with the same lunch like we had planned."

Even the students that could get SRC still had to do a lot of juggling to fit in the other required courses. Each and every sophomore had to have a P.E. class, a science class (IPS or ISI), a lunch period (5th or 6th), and an English class. Being required to take all of these resulted in the strong similarities between the schedules of the sophomore students.

There were, of course, the exceptions who chose to break up the monotony by joining a club or adding a fun elective to their otherwise routine schedule. Those who took IPS or ISI as freshmen ended up with a biology, chemistry or Western Civilization class.

Just like when you order a meal, the sophomores were offered a choice. They could try something different or just say, "I'll have the usual!"

Team (tem) n. 1. A group of players in a game. 2. Any group organized to work together. Both these definitions could have easily been applied to the sophomore football team. They flaunted their pride on and off the field. They leant a big hand to the "Class of '82" during all of the pep rallies. They even sold themselves in the slave auction for the benefit of the school.

Mark McClarie, the spokesman for the team, claimed, "Our season went smooth 'cause whether we won or lost we stuck together, as a unit, under the supervision of our coaches."

Mr. Kuns, sophomore football coach, explained how he felt about the team. "We really had good people playing for us. They were a close team. They were the kind of kids I would like my son to be like, when he grows up. When they were out there, on the field, they weren't individuals. They came together and respected each other, as a team."

▲ PATIENTLY RECITING the complicated ordering directions, Jay Lowry presents Josten's 1980 line of class rings. Orders and deposits were taken the next week at the student store.

▲ SELECTING A CLASS RING is a compliant of the options cated and expensive process. Cyndi Griffith available to them.

Class Ring Controversy

"Do you think class rings are important?" This question came up, as it does every year, from the time they first started being sold until after all had been distributed. Several sophomores gave their opinions as to whether or not they thought class rings were important. Kerri Liebhart replied, "Yes, they're important. They give you something to look back on, to remember your years in high school." However, Stephanie Hart took a more economical point of view. She remarked, "I'm not going to buy one because the four yearbooks that I'm buying will give me more to remember my high school years by."

Much curiosity was aroused by just the thought of purchasing a class ring. Almost every member of the class of '82 attended the November class meeting in the gym, at which the rings were discussed.

"Buy your class ring before the price of gold goes up again," was written on one of the posters advertising class rings. Since last year the price of gold had almost doubled. This affected the ring industry greatly. Jay Lowry, a representative of Josten's Inc., advised against purchasing 14k gold and offered the students the opportunity to buy a longer-lasting, stronger, and more economical ring made of Lustrium, a new metal.

All who attended paid very close attention to make sure they would get exactly what they wanted. Many of the students stayed after the meeting to look at some samples of the rings and stones available to them. For the following week these samples were left on display for all to admire and make their final decisions.

It's Your Turn, Sophomores

The class of '82 had its turn this fall to take the CTBS tests. These tests were very important when it came to figuring the average level of intelligence of high school students.

The testing was held in the library during the fourth week of October and the second week of November. The students were tested in groups according to alphabetical order. Many of them felt as if they were getting a day off of their regular classes. Yet they returned the next day only to receive the assignments from the day before, which added to the homework for that evening. Jenny Diebold agreed, "It shouldn't have been during school. Missing my classes really put me behind. It was also too crowded and long."

A"DON'T WAIT 'TIL THE LAST MINUTE," is the motto of the sophomore class officers, Edita Cabacungan (secretary), Megan Becker (treasurer), Drew Johannsen (vice president), and Teri Brewster (president). They planned a year ahead for the location of the Junior-Senior Prom.

With a Little Help From . . .

"Decisions decisions" were made all of the time by the sophomore class officers. Making the right decisions, that would benefit the whole class, was exactly what the officers were responsible for. Election competition wasn't very rough due to the lack of candidates. There were four people, each running for one of the four different offices.

The advisors helped in taking care of minor details. Both Mrs. Karen Cline and Mrs. Joyce Bergstrom agreed that being class advisors gave them the opportunity to get to know students they wouldn't have met otherwise. They enjoyed being involved with the sophomores and participating in activities.

◀THE FIRST CLASS MEETING presents many ideas veteran class advisors Ms. Bergstrom and Mrs. Cline have heard before. Committees were formed at this meeting.

Meetings were called whenever something needed to be discussed. The main concerns of the officers were fund raisers. No matter what the reason for calling the meeting happened to be, the subject of discussion always seemed to turn to an idea for raising money or details for one already planned.

The officers and advisors were aided by committees, concerned sophomores, and even parents, making necessary work a little easier. Edita Cabacungan, sophomore class secretary commented in gratitude, "I thought it would be impossible to find any volunteers since most students didn't want their parents to chaperone. The new regulations required them. There wouldn't have been a dance without the aid of the parents."

To Each His Own

"What d'ya wanna do tonight?"

"I dunno ... there's lots of things to do. Let's see, how 'bout going to see a movie? 'The Jerk' is playing at Puente Hills Theater. Don't you just love Steve Martin?"

"Sure, I'd love to go but neither one of us have our license yet and I hate to ask my big sister to drive us again."

"Yeah, I know what you mean. Hey, Carol's sister is going over to Skate Country and since Showboat is right by there, maybe we could hitch a ride with her."

"No way — you know that only freshmen hang out there. Let's go to Skate Country instead and catch a couple of guys."

"Are you kidding? I don't even know how to skate. I refuse to make a fool of myself by falling down all the time."

"O.K.... I know! There's a party down the street that I got invited to and I'm sure that you could come with me."

"Sounds great, but I have to ask my parents first. Hold on ... Oh shoot! They said I couldn't go tonight because I have to get up early tomorrow. Why don't you just come over here and we can watch "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

"Welll . . . alright. I'll bring the popcorn."

One didn't have to go somewhere to enjoy oneself. A lot of students spent the greater part of their free time at home. Annie Caulkins liked to read, listen to music, and have fun just relaxing. Cindy Graham baby sat and did homework during most of her spare time. She stated that she liked being with kids, but didn't enjoy the homework. Sangho Kim was very much interested in the martial arts. He had been practicing since he was seven years old. Free time was best when spent as each individual enjoys it.

For Future Use . . .

"School is important. The things you learn there will be useful to you in the future." This statement, which was frequently questioned by students, did in fact, apply to a most important class. This was the State Requirement Course, otherwise known as SRC.

In this class, not only rules and regulations of driving were taught, like most people assumed. Six to seven weeks were spent on driver's education. The remaining time of the semester was split up between health (including first aid) and drugs and alcohol.

SRC was one of the hardest classes to get into and was changed to a semester course. Even with the extra nine weeks, there was much to be learned and not much time to learn it in. There were many tests and much cramming the night before each one. The subtraction of the other two courses per year made it especially difficult to get the class.

The completion of the driver's education was a relief for most, although it led to driver's training (behind-the-wheel) and then getting the permit. After getting the Permit it was only a matter of being sixteen years old before sophomores could start testing to receive their license.

The Devil Made Me Do It

If you cheat, remember, you're only cheating yourself," was a statement recited to students time after time after time. However, for many of them the idea of not cheating just didn't seem to sink in.

A notebook very cleverly left opened on the floor, helpful notes written on the desk, the body, or on the clothes and getting information previous to a test or exam were among the various tactics used for cheating. Another scheme was changing errors after the correct answers had been given. Many teachers had found ways of preventing or detecting these methods. English teacher Mr. Steve Bailey observed, "I think I catch most of my cheaters, but I know some get through."

Last, but not least, was the most common and easiest to get away with, copying. Mr. Bob Corkrum claimed that teachers can't prevent cheating. The best a teacher can hope for is to discourage cheating. The use of multiple form tests, covering the same material, helps in this area.

When Mr. Corkrum caught people cheating he dropped them from the class with an "F". He had suspected cheating occurring, and had had a previous discussion, as a warning. He was very disappointed in those that cheated.

When asked if he thought cheating was normal, Mr. Corkrum replied, "It's normal to face the temptation, and even consider it. But to choose to cheat is not normal."

Sophs for Hire

People needed jobs for various reasons. The majority of students got jobs just for the money. Many of them were saving for a car because they were about to receive their license. For a lot of sophomores it is hard to get a job because of age (not 16 yet), because of inexperience, irresponsibility, lack of transportation, incapability of handling a job, or, for some, their parents just didn't want them to have a job.

If one did get a job it was either very beneficial because of the experience and extra money or it took up most of their free time. Some students couldn't always get their homework done on time because of long or unusual hours. Mimi Erbe worked on weekdays from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and longer hours on weekends. This left her little time for homework and socializing. Business seemed to have taken away all pleasures.

The First Meet of the Year

Orientation, the first aspect of high school, was one not enjoyed by many. Starting September 10th school opened and the end of summer was here.

With the presence of a heatwave it was hard to believe vacation was really over. Everybody was looking forward to getting home and cooling off as soon as possible. But for the new incoming upperclassmen and freshmen, it was strongly suggested by the administration to stay for orientation.

The orientation, which began at 12 o'clock, was an introduction to the school. The 1979-80 ASB officers were introduced to the new class. Along with the advantages of buying an ASB card, the student store was also explained to the class of '83. ASB president Jeff Richardson pushed for the sale of Walnut High t-shirts and the importance of getting involved with clubs and activities. Rules and regulations were also stressed.

The Drill Team, J.V. and Varsity Cheer, Flag, Songleaders and the mascots performed after the main points of orientation were covered. Looking up into the bleachers, half of the gym was filled with new upperclassmen and freshmen fanning themselves to keep cool. The other half of the gym was made up of the Pep squad, ASB officers and the band, who performed during the meeting. With the meeting over, some freshmen left in search of a cold drink, but most headed for home and an air-conditioned house.

►WHILE WATING FOR ORIENTATION to start, few freshmen seemed really interested. David Graves, Steve Chuha, Kent Partida, and David Ungard were the minority who listened for important information.

Eighty percent of the freshmen class was planning to go to college with 46% of them for 4 years or more. As for careers, the staff received the following replies. Choices ranged from careers in the medical field such as a surgeon, dentist, pediatrician, nurse, veterinarian, or pharmacist to an occuaption in law or a secretarial job. A computer programmer, architect, policeman, airline or Air Force pilot, and a truck driver were also mentioned. These were just a few of the occupational desires expressed by the freshmen. After reading the statistics, Mr. Landerer, the vocational counselor remarked, "I think the freshmen class has a lot of potential and the advantages are there for them to take."

Anything Goes?

What are the fads, fashions, and hangouts of freshmen? In answer to a Cayuse survey, many said rollerskating was a fad with skiing, surfing, Punk Rock, New Wave and Disco, and soccer following behind.

What about fashions? In the survey, Vans off the Wall was the hottest fashion item for freshmen. Jeans ranked second with OP and Lightening Bolt surfwear high on the list. Disco attire, permanents, macramé shoes, and Nike sneakers were also mentioned.

Hangouts weren't really specified. A lot of the surveys came back with the reply "anywhere." Some said that they hungout at the beaches, their friends' house, or just in the neighborhood. Of course, that was due to transportation. Many students had to rely on their parents and the bus. At school many said that they hung around the lunch area, the transformers, smoking area, and in the library.

"What is a fad?" The latest thing, whatever is in style.

When asked what he considered a fad, Christopher Yip replied, "Nikes because they last longer than other brands of tennis shoes." When asked the same question, Timmy Matias replied, "OP surfwear because it's the cool thing to wear."

Being a freshmen meant just about anything goes, because they had begun a new school with new laws and traditions set by the students themselves.

Starting Young

Many freshmen entering a new school were exposed to habits and activities they hadn't previously been confronted with. Two areas that required decision making were smoking and drinking.

According to freshmen students, they drank for a variety of reasons:

"I drink because everyone else does."
"It makes me happy."

"I wanted to try it."

The first two quotes became the main reasons explaining why 31% of the 604 freshmen drank. There was no set pattern present in replies about how often they drank. Freshmen stated that they drank as often as every weekend to as little as every few months. One favorite response was, "I drink on special occasions."

As far as how they got the first drink, the majority stated it was their friends who gave or experienced the first drink with them. Freshmen replied that they didn't want to be left out of the group while others drank for fun.

Parents were the second major cause for freshmen drinking. One freshman was quoted saying his parents gave him some wine or other drinks on special occasions because it was a tradition. This freshman drank only twice a month but he was not sure he wanted to quit. Other freshmen students in the same situation were not sure they wanted to quit either.

■INFORMATION ON ALCOHOL AND SMOKING can be found in the school library.

Brothers and sisters were the third cause for starting. Many of the freshmen continued drinking because the liquor was there. Family problems seemed to be another cause.

The majority of the freshman class didn't think drinking was "cool". But the majority of drinkers didn't want to stop.

On the other hand, the majority of 17% of the freshmen who smoked cigarettes did want to stop. Many freshmen replied that they really didn't know why they started, but their first puff was from friends.

Some freshmen indicated that their smoking started because they were bored and there was nothing else to do, while other students stated it was because of problems and nervous tension.

Most freshmen smokers were light smokers. Many of the 17% who smoked averaged only one or two cigarettes a day. One freshmen admitted to one after every class. Others stated they smoked every other day, weekends or only a few times a month.

When asked if they thought smoking was acceptable, the majority of the 17% replied, "no." One student who smoked twice a day stated that he didn't want to quit, but even he had reservations. He stated, "Nobody thinks you're cool if you smoke."

Various pamphlets on alcoholism were available, while smoking information was scarce.

Just Showing Off

A hobby that was popular with teenage girls was horse shows. Debbie Tobiassen, a freshman, had participated in horse shows since she was 11.

Debbie and her older sister Shari worked with thoroughbred horses owned by their parents and they learned to ride them. By 11, Debbie had started to enter horse shows and had since won various awards. She had shown in Chino and at the L.A. fairgrounds. She rode English and Western, two-forms of riding, and had ridden in some highly rated shows but usually participated in local events.

At age 14, she was working towards a silver trophy and had been saving high points. With the high points she would later be able to enter state competitions.

Practice took one hour every day and the day before the shows Debbie gave her horse Marzett, a female Arabian the day off. On the day of the competitions, Debbie rode Marzett for a few hours before the show. In the competitions she had been judged on pleasure equitation, which was based on the rider.

Debbie planned to continue riding and competing in horse shows and hoped to surpass her sister Shari in the amount of high points. When asked what career she would choose, Debbie replied, "I would be involved with horses such as teaching people to ride, or become a veterinarian."

◆SHOWING THREE YEARS OF HARD WORK, Debbie Tobiassen has a large display to show for her achievements. With enough high points she will soon be able to enter state competitions.

Six Days a Week

Five days a week seemed like plenty of school to most students; however, some ambitious people made it six. Freshmen Sandra Fong, Kirby Lim, Tim Matias and Christopher Yip all attended the San Gabriel Valley Chinese School on Saturdays. They went to the school every Saturday from 9:00 to 12:00.

The school taught language and various dialects which make up the language, as well as the history of the Chinese. Between 9:00 and 12:00 each class had time put aside for P.E. The class taught three different sets (Kung Fu moves for fighting and defense) according to different levels of Kung Fu. The school had one main instructor, Master William Wang; he had four assistants who were his son and sons-in-law. The school was considered very lucky to have Master Wang as the instructor. He had taught many important people such as Ben Vereen. From 12:30 to 1:30, a regular Kung Fu class was held in which Sandra, Kirby, Tim and Chris participated. The Kung Fu moves they learned were used for performances only. SGVCCA (San Gabriel Valley Chinese Cultural Association) performed many times for various groups.

The youth group who gave the performances had participants from the ages of 7 to 16 years of age. Sandra Fong and Kirby Lim performed at Palo Alto during halftime at the Stanford football game in 1979. Sandra, Kirby and Chris have done performances for the Broadway at the Brea and Puente Hills malls. They also performed in the Chinese New Year Parade held every year in Chinatown and various other performances.

When asked what they liked best about the school, they replied, "Doing Kung Fu and performing it." The youth group's head advisor was Dr. Andrew Wong, who in 1979 was nominated for the LaPuente Citizen of the Year Award. The school was a non-profit organization. The biggest profit was the parents' pleasure in seeing the children learn their Chinese heritage.

◆DURING CHINESE NEW YEAR the association performs in the four plazas in Los Angeles Chinatown. The scene is of lion parents which are operated by Lester and Kirby Lim who work the head and tail of one of the parents.

High School vs. Junior High

How does high school differ from junior high? The replies were various and numerous. Many freshmen said high school gave them a lot more responsibility. Some thought it was just bigger with a lot more people. Others thought it was a lot harder because of all the homework and classes.

Freshmen expressed the following views:

"There are more privileges and there is a smoking area."

"Teachers treat you like people, not animals."

"You have to act older than you are."

There were other issues that students brought up, like being able to choose their own classes from a wide variety of choices. Another popular reply to the question about the differences between high school and junior high was, "There are fewer classes, especially when you're an upperclassman." One freshman even wrote about how much more knowledge there was to gain because of the different teaching system. A lot of students thought that high school was more fun. It had pep rallies and assemblies, cuter guys and girls, more mature students, a wide range of choices for sports, fewer fights, and more people to meet.

▶ONE BENEFIT OF HIGH SCHOOL is having class advisors who will oversee the class through all four years. Mr. Bill Murray and Mrs. Janet Beneda are the advisors for the class of '83.

◆LOOKING BACK AT SUZANNE JR. HIGH, freshmen from Suzanne as well as Chaparral often compare junior high to high school. One comparison is how much larger high school is.

ADVANTAGEOUS TO GOOD SWIMMERS, Walnut high school offers both swimming and water polo. There were a number of freshmen who made the Water Polo teams.

A Freshman Is . . .

What exactly is a freshman? freshman (freshman) n. 1. A student in the first year of high school or college. 2. Any beginner. According to Roget's College Thesaurus (a book with synonyms and antonyms of numerous words): freshman, n. plebe, underclassman, novice, greenhorn, tenderfoot.

But students have a different view. Freshmen stated: "A freshman is just starting out in life wanting a piece of the action."

"A person who's 14 or 15 and a ninth-grader, who gets picked on by the upperclassmen."

"A freshman is like everyone else."

Sophomore students, as well as upperclassmen, had a different view. A lot of them thought of a freshman as being squirrelly, immature, and naive. Upperclassmen's definitions of a freshman were:

"Unfortunately, what I was last

"One step lower than a sophomore, two steps lower than a junior and far from a senior."

"A new-born on the campus."

"A student just trying to be a student."

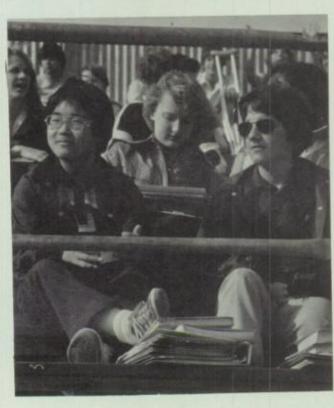

"Are people, too."

"A person in ninth grade in high school that gets picked on for being the youngest."

"A snowflake in a blizzard."

"But a lost soul entering into a new world of pep rallies, football games, and plenty of homework."

▲ENJOYING THE LUNCH SHE BOUGHT from the snacketeria, Alexandra Gavela eats and chats with friends. Even though the Senior Mall was set aside for seniors, freshmen and other underclassmen ate there during 5th and 6th lunches.

AT THE FIRST MEETING with their new officers, freshmen seem interested in Todd Brewster's speech. Glenn Ono listens to plans for the year's activities.

■TAKING A BITE, Paul Wager eats lunch with friends during 6th period. Mr. Dunbridge allowed students to eat in his room during his lunch period.

▼GETTING INVOLVED, Don Truex signs up for the freshman dance committee. Deanna Di Bartolomeo was in charge of receiving signatures.

◄IN DEFENSE OF HIS CLASSMATES, a freshman expresses his opinion of what a freshman is. The phrase was written on Mr. Dunbridge's floor after the rugs were torn up because of the rains.

TONIGHTS THE NIGHT

"Mom, what time is it? Are you serious? It's 6:45? Brent's gonna be here in fifteen minutes! Do you think you could iron my blouse for me? I know it's not dry yet, but it's the only blouse I have that matches my new pants.'

"What do you mean you need the car tonight, Dad? I told you I was going out tonight. I'm so sure we're going to walk. Well, I guess I could ask Jeff to let me borrow his car. How difficult could it be to drive a stick shift anyway?"

"Mom, can you get the door please?" That must be Brent. My blouse is still wet and I only had time to put mascara on one eye. I hope he doesn't notice.

"Hi Mrs. Ryan, Is Kim almost ready?" I hope she doesn't take too long; I had to keep the car running. I wish I would've remembered to ask Jeff how to turn off a stick shift car.

"Hi Brent. Sorry it took me so long." Gosh, he's really in a rush to get out of here. At least he didn't notice I'm only wearing mascara on

"Hi Kim. Ya ready to go?"

"Sure."

"Okay, let's go. Bye Mrs. Ryan. It was nice meeting you."

"How come you left the car running Brent?"

"Well, I borrowed the car from Jeff and I figured I'd try to save him some gas. You know turning the car off and on all the time really wastes gas." Gosh, I'm sure a source of useful information. I bet she's just thrilled.

"So Brent, what have you been doing lately?" Boy, I'm such a conversationalist.

"Oh, not much. What about you?"

"I really had a good time" Even though my blouse was wet, you couldn't drive, I only had mascara on one eye and we never got out of the car.

"Nothing really." I wonder when he learned to drive a stick shift. That last lurch just about broke my neck.

"This stupid car is so cold it keeps lurching. I wonder how Jeff can stand

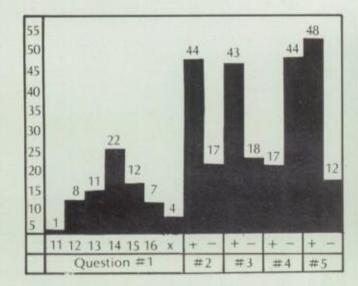

"It's not that bad, I barely even noticed it." Cold car my foot.

"I hope this is good. But even if it's not, it's better than going to that stu-pid school dance." I hate left turns. The light is already yellow and the cars are still going through. Shoot, it turned red and I'm sitting in the middle of the intersection. I better get this car moving. My God, I stalled it! I wish those other cars would stop honking. I stalled it again! We're never gonna get out of here! "This stupid car, it's never working right."

"My mom's car is just like this Brent. Why don't you let me try it." I can't believe this is happening! "Why don't you just get out and walk around while I crawl over."

"Sorry about that, Kim. It's a good thing this stupid car finally warmed

"Yeah, that sounds fine. Brent, do you want to drive?"

"No, you go ahead. I've been driving this car so much lately, I'm kind of sick of it."

"Do you have an A.S.B. or I.D. card? You need one to get into the dance." I hope he doesn't have one. My blouse is still wet and as soon as we slow-dance he's gonna think I'm

"Yeah, I've got one, no problem."

I have a feeling this is gonna be a long night. "This parking lot is packed Brent. Maybe we should just go home."

"What's the matter, don't you want to go?"

"It's not that exactly. I just don't feel so good all of a sudden." I'm such a quick thinker.

Oh, I just bet she doesn't feel good. "I'm sorry you don't feel good, Kim. Why don't you just take us home." I really saved myself some money tonight, that's for sure.

"Well, Brent, thanks a lot. I really had a good time." Even though my blouse was wet, you couldn't drive, I only had mascara on one eye and we never got out of the car.

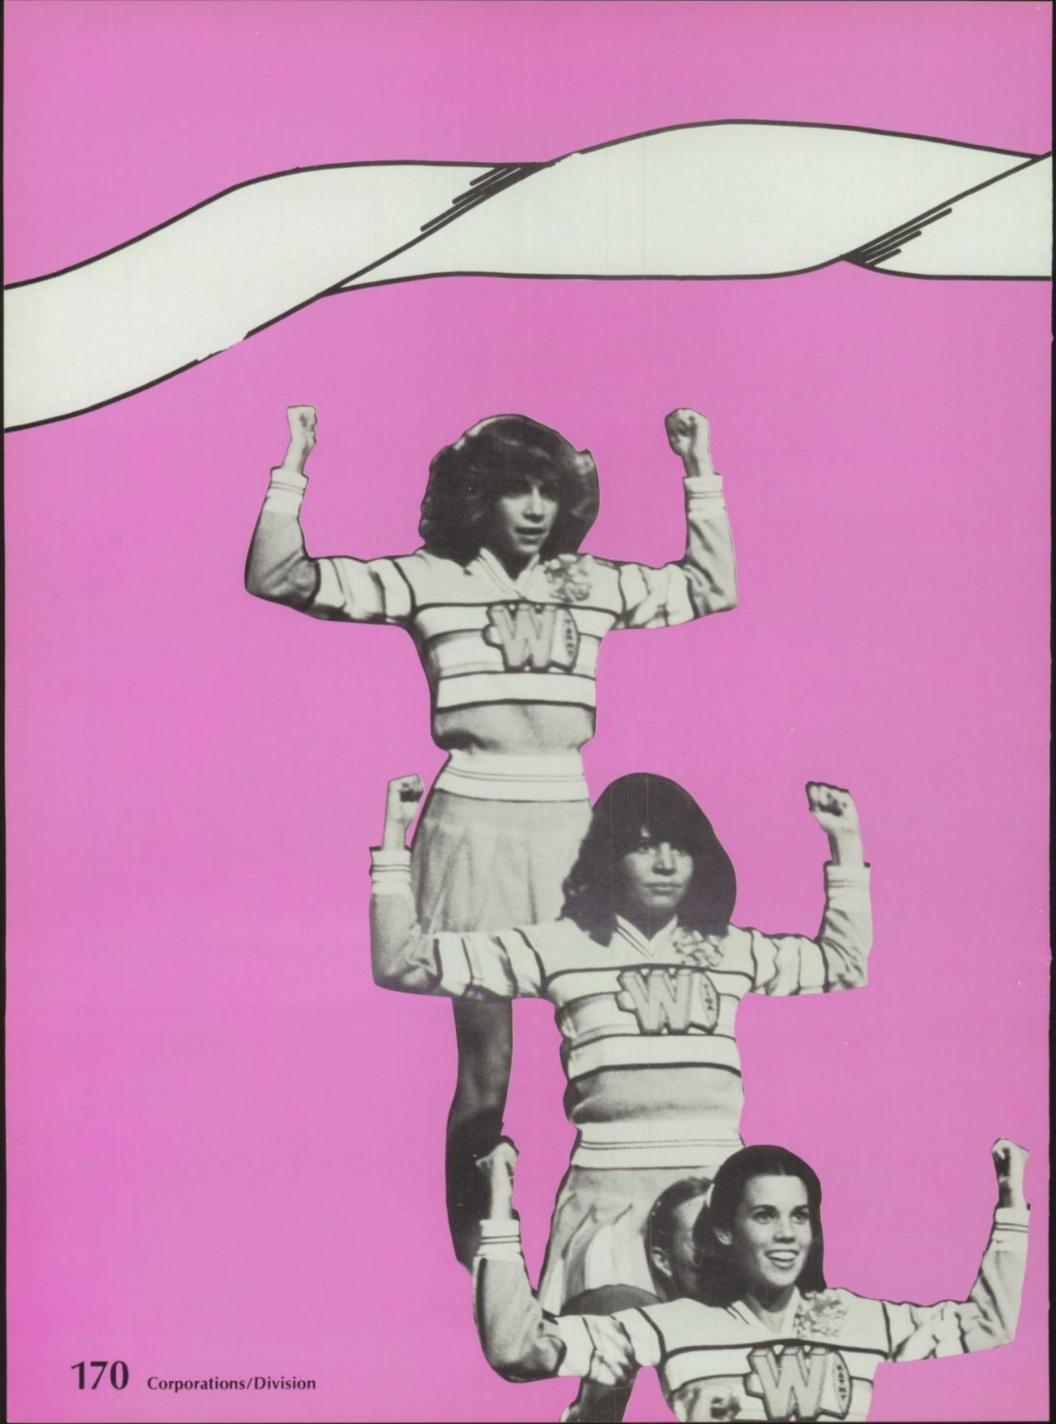

"I'll walk you to the door."

"No, don't bother."

"Kim?" "Huh?"

"Do you think you'd want to go out with me again sometime?"

"Sure, why not?" @

Corporations

Some people come to school, go to classes and then go home. They have no other involvement with school. Others get together and form various organizations like Electronics, Ski, Thespians and French. These organizations have their own rights, privileges and laws, just like corporations in the outside world.

All the corporations held fundraisers to earn money for activities. The most popular fundraisers were car washes, dances and bake sales. Others ranged from candle sales to nut sales. The initial cost to be involved in corporations varied from no dues at all, as in Girls League, to over 400 dollars in Pep. Pep needed this large sum of money for uniforms, camp, competitions and numerous other tems.

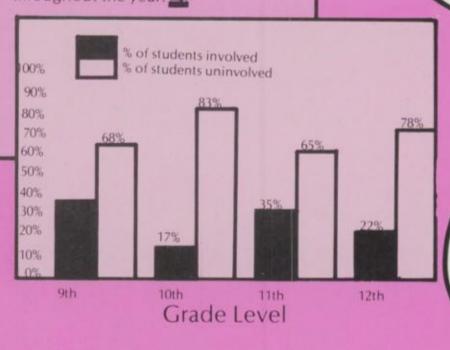

The graph below points out the act that the majority of the students were completely un-involved in any corporations. Some reasons for this were, "I don't know where to sign up to be in them," and, "There aren't any clubs for the kind of stuff that I do, like motorcycles," observations by Bob Joyce and Chuck Hooter, respectively. The junior class was the most involved with 35%. Junior Ted Brewster said the reason he was in corporations was, "to be active in school and meet new people."

HONIORS are the most involved class, as hown by these results. A sampling of 100 nembers of each class were surveyed by the layuse staff, on whether or not students were nvolved in corporations.

A trip to Olvera Street, skiing down the slopes and marching through the streets were things you might have expected to do if you were involved in corporations. The following pages give the Annual Report on what each of the 29 active corporations did throughout the year.

Leadership Through Innovation

A.S.B.

Preparing for Spirit Week, Homecoming and the post game dance was A.S.B.'s busiest time. For the first time Spirit Week had new activities such as court secrets, nerd dress-up day and a slave auction. There was one activity scheduled for each day during spirit week.

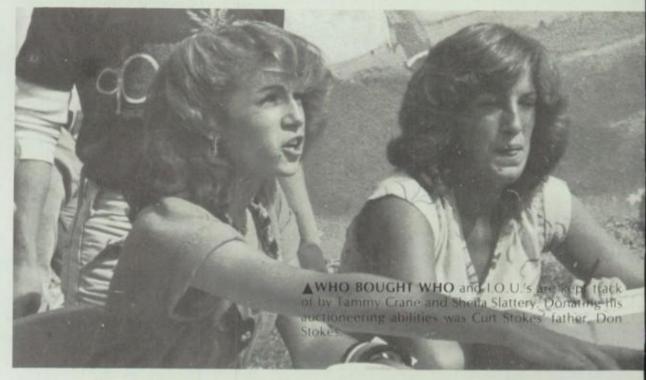

A.S.B. planned the first night pep rally to announce the Homecoming king. A.S.B. made this change due to the fact that during the day two separate assemblies would have been needed in order to accomodate all students.

The slave auction accidentally turned out to be a big moneymaker. It brought in well over $600. This money in addition to money brought in by A.S.B. cards made it possible for students to enjoy music during lunch after spearkers were purchased for $1100.

Responsible for approving all activities that went on around school was A.S.B.'s main function. Their goal was one activity every week. Some of these activities were bands performing during lunches, class meetings and Power Plan. "I don't think the school realizes all the time A.S.B. puts in all the activities," commented Barbie Miller, Asst. Records & Alumni.

▲WITH THE HELP OF HIS HANDS, Jeff Richardson proposes his plan for the Homecoming assembly. Homecoming was the biggest event A.S.B. sponsored.

▲ JOTTING IDEAS DOWN on paper, Joe Garay, Chairman of Performing Arts, prepares to bring his ideas up at the next meeting. A.S.B. cabinet met every Thursday at 7 a.m., besides meeting 3rd period daily.

Band

"Successful" was the word Mr. Rick Massaro used to describe the First Annual Walnut High Field Tournament Show. It was held at Mt. San Antonio College on October 30.

A tournament show is when a band displays its best show, from between eight to twelve minutes in competition with other bands of their size and experience. Band Director Mr. Massaro stated, "The tournament went smoothly with no complaints, only compliments."

The purpose of the tournament was to let people in this area see how the bands were doing and what a tournament show was like. It also was a fundraiser. Ten bands competed and everybody went home with an award. There were three different divisions based on the size and experience of the band. Los Altos took the Sweepstakes trophy.

Our band received a lot of support from the boosters as well as boosters from other schools. The band made enough money after paying expenses to contribute to the uniform fund. Other fundraisers included a candle sale and a nut sale.

"Before a performance I feel nervous, excited, and that we'll do pretty good," stated Adrienne Atkins. At the Cal Poly tournament, the band placed first. At Citrus College and West Covina competitions they placed third. Tall Flags competed at Cal Poly, West Covina, Azusa, and Los Altos placing first, second, third, and fourth respectively.

For and by the Students

Hoofprint

Keeping their ears open and reading every bulletin were good journalistic habits learned by the Hoofprint staff. They collected the most interesting information from these sources to write stories for the newspaper. The class then sat in a circle brainstorming in order to get the best ideas for the articles. Hoofprint reader Pam Ramos commented, "My favorite part of the paper is the song dedications. It's one way to learn the latest gossip." The real work began after they decided what they were going to write.

The Hoofprint staff met during 7th period and stayed after school often to meet their deadlines. All the work of putting the paper together involved: taking pictures, interviewing people, writing articles and pasting up the pages. This work was done by the students. The leisure life of the staff included having parties at each others' houses or just taking off to "the show."

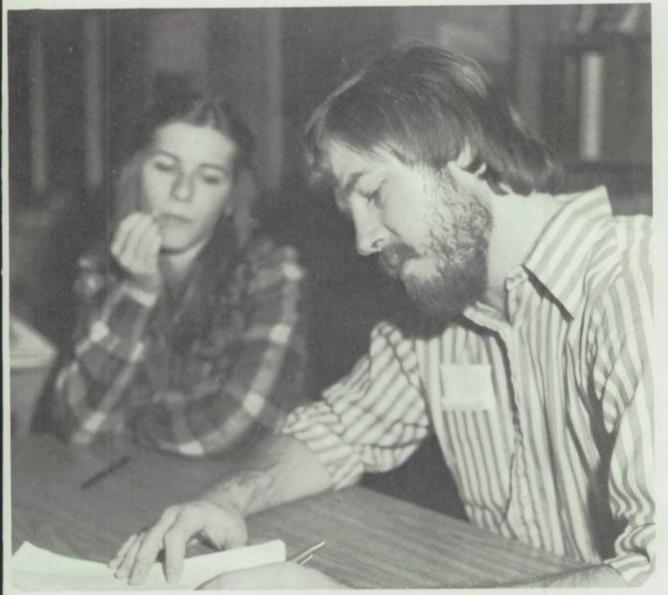

The paper was distributed monthly, totaling ten issues. The $300 per issue cost was paid by A.S.B. and ads sold by the staff. The paper was free to all A.S.B. card holders. Otherwise, it cost 25¢ a copy.

► CORRECTING AND APPROVING articles is Kym VandenBerg's responsibility as assistant news editor. Being a 3rd year staffer allows her to write the astrograph column, design the front page and assign news stories.

Innerlight

For the three editors and advisor who put together the entire Innerlight magazine, being involved meant a lot of hard work. Short stories, poems, photographs and art work were submitted to editors Fathia Sessing, Leslie Haynes, and Donna Lewis, and advisor Mr. John Orr through boxes in each English room, the art room and the library. "We had no problem getting enough entries," stated Fathia.

After all the entries were submitted, the editors and advisor got together and chose what they wanted to print in the magazine. It was then all edited, pasted up and sent to the graphics department to be printed. Fathia also commented, "We gave students literary and art work exposure that they might not have been able to get elsewhere because there's less competition." Innerlight was distributed at the end of May. Enough were published for all A.S.B. card holders plus 200 extra for those who wanted to buy one.

▲ PROOFREADING AND REWRITES are fundamentals of good journalism. There are many steps that Barbara Holt must go through before she submits the final story. One step is having Mr. John Orr (Advisor) make any necessary grammatical corrections.

AWATCH THOSE KEYS FLY! Having good typing skills helps Wanda Shaheen get her story finished sooner. About one-third of the class previously had typing classes.

▲LOOKING BACK to the previous Innerlight, Fathia Sessing checks for areas that need improvement. Fathia had one year of experience which helped her keep up with her responsibilities.

Changing and Rearranging

Girl's League

The Winter Formal was the big topic buzzing around in Girl's League. It was the first year they had a Winter Formal instead of a Christmas Formal. The change was due to a possible C.I.F. football conflict; however, Ms. Chris Gillette felt the change was for the best. "It was more affordable, more people could go, and we got the band for half the price."

Active membership increased from 15 girls to 75. The girls had a Stocking Stuffer sale, where they sold two different kinds of stuffed animals. There also was the annual Carnation sale at Homecoming. These fundraisers made over $450.

Girl's League sponsored the annual Mother-Daughter Tea in the spring, which honored graduating senior girls. Scholarships were based on service to Girls League, school, community, scholarship, citizenship, and need. "All our efforts go towards scholarships which all senior girls are eligible for," stated president Fathia Sessing.

► SIGNING UP for the Formal Committees are Paige Vallance and Debbie Dunajski. To get more girls involved, nine different committees. were set up to help organize the Formal.

House of Reps

Pride Day and the paving of the smoking area were the two main topics discussed by the members of the House of Reps. Meetings were changed from every other week to once a month because last year's semi-monthly meeting weren't necessary. The House of Reps discussed goals, old and new business, schoolwide fundraisers and activities.

The purpose of the House of Reps was to have better communication between the students and A.S.B. Each third period class elected a student to represent them in the House of Reps. From there the Speaker of the House represented them in A.S.B. "This way the students accomplished things the way they wanted," stated Shari Kerkenbush, Speaker of the House. @

I.C.C.

"My goal was for all the clubs to have their own constitution," stated Linda Brown, president of I.C.C. For the first time in the schools history, this was accomplished. I.C.C. stands for Inner Club Council and is made up of the presidents from each club and class.

The possibility of a Club Day was the main topic in I.C.C. They also discussed activities and how their clubs were doing. The presidents learned how to lead their clubs better and how to organize successful fundraisers. I.C.C. met every 3rd Wednesday in the A.S.B. office.

ARELATING LEADERSHIP SKILLS, Linda Brown teaches how to conduct an effective club meeting. At A.S.B. summer camp many exercises were taught which helped club presidents to direct their activities and meetings.

Career Skills Spotlighted

Mustang Press

During the two hours a day that Mustang Press students met, they did certain jobs for which they were "paid." Although the money wasn't real, it determined their grade. $750 was the minimum amount of money a student could earn to get an A.

Printing up dittos, back to school night posters, registration booklets and basketball programs were jobs that they got paid for when completed. At the end of the year the annual graphic sale was held. Posters and class mirrors that students created were purchased.

Being on Mustang Press provided students with job skills in the printing field. They learned how to use machines like a Nu Arc Platemaker, a 1250 Multilith and a Shrink Package Machine. Students made portfolios which held all their work to show employers when looking for a job. Tom Hayes, Frank Blackwell, Alex Perez and Darren Wentworth all were hired at Point and Pica Graphics because of the skills they learned in Mustang Press.

Science

Climbing rocks, observing stars, and taking pictures were what the Science Club did on Nov. 16-18. Twelve students went to Joshua Tree National Monument. Ru Chao said, "It was an educational experience that I won't soon forget." "I learned how to play backgammon," laughed advisor Mr. Gary Fick.

The purpose of the trip was to learn about astronomy by studying the stars through telescopes. On Saturday night a meteor shower provided a great show for amateur astronomers.

The club increased from 5 to 43 members. "Science is becoming popular. Students are getting more interested," explained Mr. Fick. Members made individual and group projects in astronomy, lasers, photography, spectroscopy, radio, and behavioral sciences.

Electronics

Strobe lights, color organs, electronic games and televisions displayed at Back to School Night were put together by the Electronics Club. The equipment took three hours to set up and was the biggest display on campus. Parents and teachers alike came in to look.

Most electronic students were in Algebra 2 or higher, since many projects involved math skills. Most members were considering entering the electronics field as a profession. "I took the class because I find it very interesting," stated Mike Comacho. Skills such as designing AC and DC circuits, power supplies and bread board designs prepared them for the working world.

Repair work was done during the second semester. Students brought their broken appliances into the electronics room. Before it could be fixed Mr. John Heneise, advisor, and the student performing the job had to approve it.

At the end of the year there was a project sale. A working line of noise makers and digital projects were displayed in the electronics room and art display building. The money raised from items sold was used for purchasing equipment and a barbecue party.

Good Guys Finish First

Campus Life

Sitting on the electric chair was the most dreaded thing a Campus Lifer faced. The punishment for losing a game usually meant getting "fried." The electric chair was a little chair that gave the loser a shock when he sat on it.

There were two types of Campus Life meetings — club and insight. Club meetings started out with a few games and then turned to discussions on various topics such as families, self worth, sex, peer pressure, goals and values. Afterwards, there were refreshments. Insight meetings were more serious. There weren't any games and one became more deeply involved in the topics through the use of Bibles. These two types of meetings alternated every week.

Along with the weekly meetings, there were numerous other activities that the Campus Lifers were involved in. These included camps, concerts, special game days and special meetings. Different camps were held throughout the year at various places such as the beach, the river, the mountains and the desert. Some of the activities included superclub, the manhunt, burgerbash, riot and breakaway. The manhunt was a club meeting where everyone got a list of people to find fitting different discriptions, such as junior letterman or somebody in pajamas. Then members went out and tried to get as many people as they could on the list. The meeting ended up with 128 people. Some of these activities gave members a chance to be with other Campus Lifers in the area.

"I come to Campus Life to meet new friends, find answers to problems and to have fellowship," stated Todd Bramwell. Other reasons included to have fun, improve attitude, be with people who care and gain personal and Christian growth.

Campus Life was an off campus club that had been at Walnut for ten years. Meetings were held at different members houses every week. There weren't any dues or requirements and anyone was welcome to come.

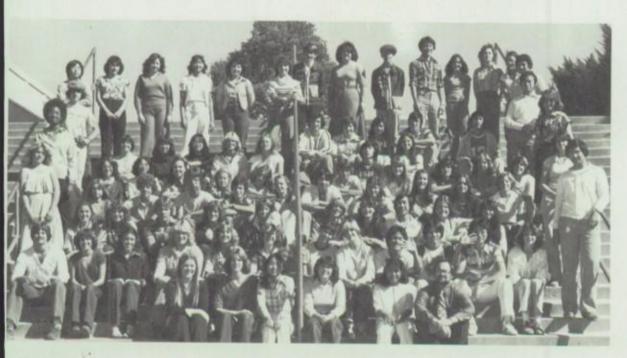

Campus Life is a Christian organization, a branch of Youth for Christ. It maintains chapters in 55 countries around the world. "We give high school students an option for a different type of lifestyle, that includes a relationship with Christ," stated Peggy Hunker, director.

Key Club

Collecting perfume and cologne for gifts to give to the elderly at Christmas was one of Key Club's main service projects. The project went over well. Over sixty different kinds of perfumes and cologne were collected. "The people at the convalescent home were really excited about receiving the gifts," stated advisor Mr. Charles Sismondo.

Key Club Day was a day set aside for the members to come work on the school and help clean it up. It was originally set for January 12, but due to the rain it was changed to February 23. Other activities included a trip to Laserium at Griffith Park and Career Day. On Career Day the Key Club had breakfast with the Kiwanis club members and spent the day with a Kiwani relating to the type of career they wanted to look into.

Key Club was a service club for the community and school, sponsored by the Walnut Valley Kiwanis. Meetings were held at 7 a.m. on Tuesdays, which took true dedication from the members. This change was due to the three different lunch periods.

C.S.F.

"Silent night, holy night . . ." As the last notes of this familiar Christmas carol ended, the C.S.F. carolers moved on to the next mobile home. A group of about 20 people went to brighten up Christmas for the people who lived in The Friendly Village Mobile Home Park in West Covina. A variety of carols were sung, but Silent Night seemed to be everyone's favorite. As Barbie Veselic stated, "It felt so good to bring some joy into some people's lives with something so simple.

Afterwards, a get-together was held at advisor Mr. Hank Johnson's home. There was hot chocolate, Christmas cookies, a roaring fire, a player piano and more singing.

The California Scholarship Federation completed these community projects for service points. The club members did not just get good grades, join the club and do nothing. Every semester everyone had to earn service points. These were earned by doing anything to help the community, such as volunteering at a hospital or cleaning up the Diamond Bar and Walnut area.

The Valentine dance was the club's big fundraiser. Different committees were formed and headed by the officers so all members could participate. Any money earned was used for scholarships at the end of the year.

C.S.F. was not only a local school club but part of a state-wide organization. There was a C.S.F. Disneyland night on February 22 and a C.S.F. college day at U.C. Irvine. This was to unite all C.S.F. members, disregarding the different schools they came from

It Started as a Joke

Varsity Art

Were you interested in Aesthetology? The members of Varsity Arts were avid supporters of Aesthetology—the appreciation of beauty.

Varsity Arts came into its first formal year of existance, although members had been active for many years. Its membership consisted of those artists who were "advanced," i.e. Drawing, Painting and Special Studies students.

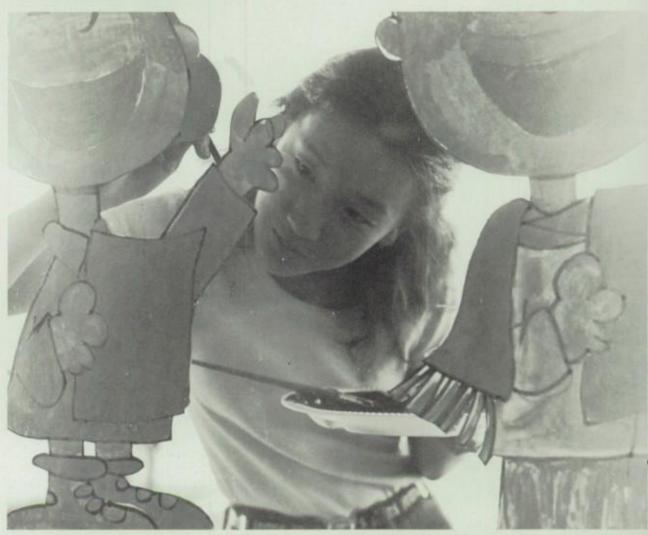

Their goals were to help improve the appearance of the school through such things as the Aquatic mural and the completion of the "rock star" pictures by the Snacketeria.

The idea of Varsity Arts did not start like an ordinary club. The emphasis on the achievements of outstanding athletes made "Coach" Donn Morris and Ceramics "Coach" Robert Maynard seek a way to recognize talented art Students. Field trips to Art museums were referred to as "away games" and the results were reported in the Bulletin.

Awards were given to outstanding art students at the end of their senior year. The club also provided artistic services to the community as well as the school.

Ceramics

The Ceramics Club reached its peak in membership with an all-time high of 21 members. People joined who had an interest in basic art and enjoyed working with their hands. They made pots, vases, mugs, plates and much more from clay.

More advanced Ceramics constitutes mostly working with the wheel. Practice was what made the better ceramicist. Working towards the sales at Back to School, Christmas, and Open House helped insure the highest quality of work.

The club retained 15%, while the creator received the rest of the profits. Each sale earned a total of approximately $100. They also helped the student body to be aware of the talent that people in Ceramics acquired.

Coach Robert Maynard has remained the advisor throughout the club's existance. He commented on the fact that this was the first year the club elected officers: "Because of the increase in membership, I felt it was necessary to have the club elect officers among whom responsibilities could be delegated."

Money Made Easy

Ski Club

A clean community and free bus ride to a local ski resort were the results of the fundraiser Ski Club sponsored. Cindy Becker and Diane Mainhurst came up with the idea of a trash-a-thon. The Walnut City Council was so pleased that they sent a letter of appreciation to the club. "It turned out well, bringing in $521, but I was expecting $1000," stated advisor Mr. Larry Taylor.

Participants had neighbors and friends pledge money for each large trash bag the members would fill with garbage. Then on Saturday, December 15, two stations were formed and the roadsides of Diamond Bar, and Walnut were cleaned

Port-a-Slope, owned by ex Walnut teacher Ms. Jo Ann Mittmen, had taught over 50 Ski Club members to ski in the past three years. The lessons were offered from the beginning level to beginner intermediate level. Members found that the porta-slope was a big help when they finally hit the slopes. The skiers knew how to stay on their feet and stop since the artifical surface was even slipperier than real snow. 3

Thespians

The wicked witch put a powerful sleeping spell on Santa Claus at the Buffums' Christmas breakfast show in Pomona. Thespians dressed as clowns, tin soldiers, Mrs. Claus, and Raggedy Ann and Andy entertained the audience by acting the parts of Santa's toys. By getting the children to sing Christmas carols with them, they broke the witches' spell and woke Santa from his deep sleep. Buffums paid the Thespians $200 for the two performances they put on.

Members of the Thespians Club also made a homecoming float. Jesters carried a banner with their theme, "Renaissance Reflections," written on it. A duel between sword fighters, a Queen carried by servants, and a King walking around munching on a turkey leg throwing butterscotch candy at the audience also made up their float. Even though the club received $100 for tying first with the French Club, Jackie Marquez felt, "Our float was the best. Everyone participated, we made our own costumes and put a lot of hard work into our float."

MECHA

Celebrating Christmas Posada was the main event of the MECHA club. The originally Christian celebration stands for "looking for a place to stay." Members of the MECHA club celebrated by eating Mexican food during the 5th period lunch on December 14th. Enchiladas, burritos, rice and frejoles were served.

Members had to pay $1.00 dues to join. They held a car wash November 30th at the Standard station on Nogales. Ms. Pat Kondon, advisor, commented, "It went very well, we brought in $65-$70." This money went towards the Cinco de Mayo field trip during May. The Mexican holdiay was celebrated by dances and speeches.

MECHA met on Fridays, and they occasionally saw cultural films on Mexican heritage. The movies were "I am Joaquin," "Los Vendidos," and "El Tearto Campesino." "The movies we've seen so far were all magnificent, so I wish we'd have the opportunity to see more," stated Effren Goytia.

German Club

After eating his rinderflesch (roast), Matt Alexander stated, "I was the only one brave enough to try something different." All the other German Club members ate the same thing, paprikasnitzel (breaded veal). The German feast also included milch (milk) and gemuse (vegetables). The German club learned about German food by attending dinner at the Phoneix Club in Anaheim on December

By being in German Club, students didn't only learn to like German food, but they also considered the cultural aspects of living in Germany. Meetings were held as often as twice a month, during which upcoming activities were discussed. The challenge of a volleyball game (zonedodge) was directed to the French Club. They also worked on making a plaque to hang on the gym wall. Members felt that having a plaque on the wall like all the other clubs would give their club recognition.

Spanish Club

In the month of December the treasury of the Spanish club was hit with a set-back. They had originally planned a bake sale at the Alpha Beta in Rowland Heights. But, when their activity request was turned in to A.S.B., they were informed that the principal of Rowland High would not allow the fund raiser to take place in the Rowland District. Finding this out too late to change the location, Spanish club members decided to have a carwash at a later date. Mr. Lou Lopez (Advisor), commented, "I wish we could have been told sooner, so we could have changed the location."

Scenic pictures of the countryside in Ecuador were shown at a slide presentation. At one of the meetings, Mr. Lopez brought the pictures, taken when he was there, for the club members to enjoy.

The Spanish Club met once a month and planned activities. Some of these were a trip to Olvera Street, a Mexican lunch on Mexican Independence Day and an end of the year banquet at a Mexican restaurant.

The Cultural Side of Language

French Club

"Parlez-vous Francais?" If you did, that was the only prerequisite needed to join the French club, Anyone taking a French class was technically in the club. No one was taught how to speak the language but they did get to discover a whole new culture.

Who would have thought the plain variety of garden snails were a national French delicacy called "escargots"? The club learned these things by planning outings to places where they could find French culture in the L.A. area. Going to a French art exhibition at the L.A. Art Museum or visiting the "Café Beignet" in the Brea Mall brought Europe closer to home.

The club also participated in many school related activities. For the second year they won first place for their Homecoming float. Few brave members dared to ride their bicycles in front of the whole school at the football game, creating a simulation of Frenchmen going on an sortie (outing). They pedaled down the track behind the Homecoming court, with red, white and blue streamers flapping against the wind. No one would have taken them for Americans with their loaves of French bread, berets and moustaches.

Most of the French club members were of the French III and IV classes. They made decisions like accepting a challenge from the German club to play a game of dodgeball. The club also planned to set up a booth at club day during winter and spring sports week. Their goal was to do something once a month, which made them one of the most active clubs on campus. In December, with the spirit of Christmas in mind, the club sang Christmas carols at the Clara Baldwin Convalescent Home, in French, of course! Later, a party was held for all the carolers.

Backing Up the Boys

Pep Club

The day of the Homecoming game I was a little self-conscious when I went to school since I was wearing a bright gold T-shirt. People kept coming up and asking, "What's the T-shirt for?" I had to explain to them, "It's for the pep club." Then I would add, "We're going to root at the game," since the club had just been formed. That night at the game the whole club, about 100 of us, went down on to the field and made a giant tunnel for the football players to run through. It was so exciting. I felt I would have a lot of fun with this club since we would root at a lot of the sporting events.

It wasn't all fun and games, though. I remember when my friend Gretchen Mark decided to start the club. She had been thinking about it for a while, but we could never get an advisor. Finally, Mr. Tim Guzik, a brand new teacher, accepted the post. At the first meeting there was a much bigger turn-out than expected. After that, we decided on uniforms, arranged transportation to the games and tried to plan what we wanted to do for the rest of the year. There was a lot of running around and organiz-

Wrestling Rooters

"Reverse it for two, Big Blue!" was the shouting heard throughout the gym at wrestling matches. Promoting school spirit, keeping stats, making goodies and toilet papering houses were activities wrestling rooters held to support the team.

Under the leadership of advisor and wrestling Coach Rick Valencia and president Diana Quinn, involvement increased to sixteen members. "I feel that enthusiasm and the outfits have improved over the years," stated Julie Butkus.

According to Matt Haines, most wrestlers liked the extra attention and support they received from their secret pal, a rooter assigned to each varsity wrestler. The rooters helped the wrestlers with their car wash and had a bake sale of their own.

Soccer Rooters

Thirty-three girls were added to the Varsity soccer team. Not as players, but as rooters. Each soccer player had a secret pal who brought him flowers and goodies on game days. In addition, the rooters kept stats, took care of refreshments, made posters, and gave moral support. "We appreciate all the support given by the soccer rooters," stated soccer player John Caligiuri.

The girls also helped out with the fund raisers which included a pen sale and a kick-a-thon. Coach Don Garret felt the purpose of the program was to get girls involved in the soccer program on campus and to help support the team.

Singing for a Smile

Choir

"I like being in choir so I can sing and perform, but I enjoy it most when people smile," commented Diana Quinn. With a total of 200 members, choir was the largest corporation on campus. Three out of the four choirs, members had to try out in the previous spring in front of Mr. Cline to be accepted. Tryouts were also held for solo parts.

Mustang Singers, the big beginning level, was the largest choral group with 85 freshmen. They took it as a class to develop their singing ability. There were no tryouts to get in.

Each choir met one period a day and also practiced after school. Together they put on over 100 performances, from convalescent homes to shopping malls. Cindy Perez felt that, "Cal Poly was the best place to perform."

Parents were a real asset to the choral department. The bright colorful costumes worn during performances were made by the parent costume committee. They also helped pay for the many expenses choir members had.

Choir hosted the first jazz choir festival in March. Another fundraiser was the ornament sale. Three thousand dollars was brought in by selling them to the student body and community. This money was used to pay for the rental of props, sets and places to perform. @

Jitters Turn Into Hams

Choir

"Where's my costume? Oh, God! I only have two minutes before my cue to go on stage. I wish I had time to sit in the corner and go over the words to my solo." According to choir members these are thoughts performers had before they went on stage. "Backstage is an emotional place. Some performers are crying, because they feel they did bad, while other performers are excited and relieved because they did well," stated Robyn McEuen.

As soon as the choirs were on stage, the curtains went up and the music started, choir members came alive. Sixty-four hours went into the preparation of "A Child's Dream," the Christmas concert. Two performances were held December 21st and 22nd at Cal Poly. A condensed version was also put on for junior highs and the student body.

While forming the shape of a Christmas tree, choir members sung classical Christmas songs. During intermission, candy bars, cookies, punch and coffee were available. The theme "A Child's Dream" was brought in during the second half. Excerpts from "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" and "Scrooge" were done by the Entertainers and Chamber Singers.

Finally #1

Drill

Placing first at the West Covina Field Tournament was a big honor for the Drill Team members. This was the third year they competed in Field Tournaments and the first time they captured the number one position. Football games and pep rallies were also on their agenda. The second half of the year was spent on parade competitions.

A lot of hard work and time was required of the Drill Team members.

During the first six weeks of summer they practiced two hours a day. They attended U.S.A. camp at University California Santa Barbara to learn new routines. During the school year, they practiced two periods a day, as well as staying after school. They also practiced three hours Tuesday nights for Tournament Shows.

"It's a lot of fun performing, however, a lot of hard work goes into it. I also had the chance to make many new friends," said Lorraine Alari, Since most people didn't know how much time they put in, Drill members felt they didn't get the recognition they deserved.

More girls became interested in being in Drill, with thirty out of seventy-five selected. Ms. Debbie Frick felt she had, "An enthusiastic, eager, young bunch of girls, who liked to do things together. We really had a lot of fun!"

The girls got a chance to get to do more things together then in previous years. They went on a beach trip during the summer; there was also a Halloween party and a Christmas party. A new fundraiser for Drill was selling greens and wreaths, which brought in about $600.

Did you ever?

Annual Staff

Did you ever have to try to make a first deadline during a weltering heat wave, in a classroom with no air conditioning (no windows, either)?

Did you ever try to make a deadline that you were having trouble enough with, when you never knew what class you'd be working in because your ceiling was leaking on everything, the carpet was flooded and it smelled like someone died (you had to leave because the lights might explode)?

Have you ever captured the most exciting moments of any Walnut football game, only to discover the camera didn't have any film inside?

Have you ever had the feeling that the advisor was getting back at you when he changed the system of the yearbook sale?

Have you ever tried to interview a teacher while the butterflies in your stomach were also caterpillars caught in your throat?

Did you ever ride a crowded bus to a sports event with rowdy, loud sports people so you could cover an important game? Then you had to return with rowdy, smelly, louder sports people.

Did you ever try to explain to your parents why you never see them, you're always grouchy and that you need to miss your first three classes (again) so you can try to catch up on the sleep you never get?

Have you ever been sick of people who constantly stick their face in the picture, when you're trying to take true-to-life candids? They always yell, "Take my picture!" every time they see you (when most of the time they wouldn't notice if you dropped dead)?

Ever wonder what it's like spending a week of constant activity at UCSD (University of California at San Diego) where they serve the world's worst food, doing things like going to Black's beach, or trying to learn how to make a better yearbook?

Have you ever sat up all night, biting your fingernails, praying that Sanford would get your opening section pictures back on time?

Did you ever imagine how weird it would be to see the yearbook complete and in your hand (you were proud to say "I did that")?

Could anyone believe that so many complaining, lazy people would understand that it was actually worth it after the deadlines were over?

If you said "yes" to any one of the questions above, you were a member of the Cayuse "Animal Staff." A corporation that was truly a corporation in every sense of the word.

Spirit in the Dark

Pepsters

Sneaking around in the dark on Thursday nights was a very common occurance among the pepsters. Toilet papering, dropping off goodies, and decorating rooms were some of the things the girls did for various teams.

The girls prepared for the year by attending camp at University of California at Santa Barbara. They learned new styles, chants, and routines. To show their spirit, they dressed up in various sports uniforms for dinner and also had a toga party. Another camp activity was the talent show. Lisa Hoyos felt camp was, "A lot of hard work, but a lot of fun. We got a chance to get to know each other and grew closer as a squad."

Pep was a lot more than just cheering at the games. There was much time, work, and money that went into being a pepster. The girls started practice way back in May. During the first six weeks of summer, they practiced Monday through Friday from seven to nine. In addition, they practiced many evenings. During school they practiced until 4:30, and on Mondays they painted posters.

For the first year, pep was considered a class. The girls received five credits for the first semester and earned grades. A new advisor, Ms. Sue McKinley, took over. "It was a lot of fun and I had a really good bunch of girls to work with," stated Ms. McKinley. Another addition was two appointed yell leaders, left Richardson and Allen York. Fundraisers included a dance, a pom-pon sale and the selling of basketball programs.

pexcited AT HOMECOMING because the football team is leading 21-0 at half time, Brenda Paterra, Marno Chitwood, and the rest of the pepsters continue to cheer the team on for the second half. Walnut went on to beat Damien 27-16.

WSINGING THE ALMA MATER before football games is a tradition which mascots Elena Damboiu and Kris Hepler lead with the help of the cheerleaders. This is the first year there have been two mascots. They cheered at both I.V. and Varsity games, as well as promoting school spirit.

▲ "OUR SPIRIT IS SKY HIGH," is the shouting heard throughout the gym. Kathy Hannan and Tina Phillips lead the juniors in the class competition during the pep rally.

LEADING THE CHEERS is the responsibility of Judy Upham, Jeff Richardson, and Tammy Grane. Allan York joined Jeff in his second year as yell leader.

Mergers

When a group of individuals join ogether with a special sport in common, they form an athletic team. In the same sense, when two or more ousinesses or corporations combine, they form a merger. Therefore, when 4 students came together and formed the waterpolo team, they also formed a merger.

With inflation, many students and parents complained about the rising costs of athletics, for both participants and spectators. In order to paricipate on one of Walnut's athletic eams, students had to pay for special equipment, medical examinations, nsurance, banquet tickets and other pecial activities. For the person off o the field, tickets to attend an NFL ootball game ranged from $8.00 to $12.00; for a college game such as JSC vs. UCLA, fans had to put out at east $12.00. The fans who realized he cost of such games didn't mind paying the $3.00 for the Walnut footpall game, the price set down by Sierra League officials. The majority of students didn't even have to pay this charge because they held ASB cards.

The differences between the girls' and boys' sports programs have narrowed over the years. Likewise, the percentage comparison between win-loss records of girls' and boys' sports was similar. The girls finished the '78-'79 year with a winning record of 79%; the guys, 69%.

Sports in America grew increasingly popular as more people became aware of exercise and its effect on their health. Walnut's sport opportunities grew each year also, its newest sport being waterpolo. The following pages are the Annual Report on the mergers that made up the Walnut athletic program.

Mustang Magnet Mesmerizes Many

Why did the Varsity Football team receive so much attention? What was so special about this group of forty?

Mike Simone, Scholar Athlete Award recipient remarked, "It gets a lot of attention because it brings the student body together like nothing else does. Everyone goes to the games to see or be seen."

Possibly it's for the reason given by Coach Doug Doner. "It's the first big event of the school year, plus it involves such a large number of students at all levels, such as the cheerleaders, band and drill team."

Or perhaps no other team sport required so much preparation for each game. Players had to undergo over 375 gruelling hours of practice over a period of approximately seven months. In the heat of August and September, practices were often held three times a day. Football wasn't the only element of a practice; players also found themselves running Gartel and lifting weights.

All this pain and practice for only ten games?

"Practicing three hours a day may not have been too great, but there were a lot of great times I'll never forget," recalled Carl Stokes. What won't the Mustang gridders forget? "The Damien vs. Walnut game." "Spaghetti dinners." "Pickles and painted faces." "Prayers before and after the game." "Songs on the bus." "The huge tunnel." "Horse manure." "Toilet papered lockers rooms, bedrooms and houses." "The football slide show."

'To Err Is Human'

Seen on a California T-Shirt: "I can be right, or I can be very human." In other words, to be human is to make mistakes. The Varsity Football team was very human — they made mistakes. But they also made their mark.

The start of the 1979 football season seemed to be one of apprehension for many of Walnut's fans and players. Most people didn't know what to expect from the Mustang gridders after the 1978 season finished with a 5 and 4 record. There was still hope, though.

In order to prepare for Sierra League play, the coaching staff lined up five non-league games. Usually pre-league games don't have the emotional impact of a league game. But for the team and student body, the Walnut vs. Damien game was an exception. After losing to Damien in a hard-fought playoff battle in the 1977 season, the Mustangs were prepared to defeat the Spartans. While others had their doubts, the Walnut gridders were full of confidence and went into the game ready to prove it. They came off the field with a morale-boosting score of 27-16.

The game between the Mustangs and highly ranked Los Altos Conguerors proved to be guite an unusual game. The Mustangs dominated the Conquerors in practically every department but still came away with a loss. Walnut outdefensed, outpassed and outran the Conquerors, gaining a total of 330 yards to their 77 yards. Unfortunately, the Mustangs also led in mistakes, receiving 116 yards in penalties. Commented Coach Jerry Dutton, "I know the team was really disappointed over the outcome of the game because they played well enough to win and didn't. The mistakes really hurt us."

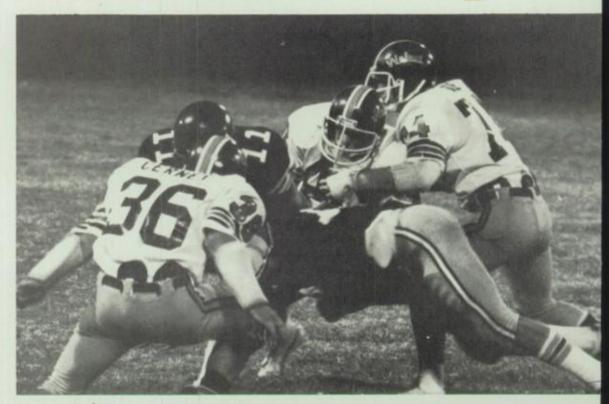

Losing the Los Altos and West Covina games, the Mustang team found it difficult, but essential, to come back and defeat the Wilson Wildcats. Going into the game, Walnut needed a win in order to make it to the CIF playoffs. Regardless of some outstanding plays, such as Isaac Woolridge's 99-yard touchdown, the Mustangs lost their lead in the last 27 seconds. Tears and disillusionment were apparent on many faces as some players felt their season was over, though they had one game left to play.

The season did end on a happy note — a whopping 37-0 win over Rowland. As Coach Dutton remarked, "The team was playing for pride."

Much of this pride, plus emotion, was displayed at the annual football banquet. In addition to the dinner and awards, a slide show depicting the dedication, pain and rewards of the football season was presented by second year letterman John Hayden.

Awards and recipients for the 1979

Sophomores Do It With Character

AJUST GETTING THE BALL OFF, Anthony Sanchez passes the football to Rick McClare for a first down. Anthony is just one of the players on the Sophomore team that contributed to the 8-1 season.

When asked to describe the Sophomore football team, Coach Tony Kuns replied, "CHARACTER — they are a good group of guys; their heads were always in the game." With the help of a larger squad this year, the Sophomore team erected an 8-1 season.

"They are very talented, they also developed a lot of fundamental skills," said Coach Kuns. Practicing more than two hours a day got them prepared for the season. The only Mustang defeats came when Los Altos finished on top with a score of 14-38. Two other games that were played well were against Damien. The Mustangs finishing on top by a score 13-7, and against Wilson where the Mustangs came on top with the score of 18-14. These were some of the games that the Mustangs showed CHARACTER.

Anthony Simich and Carlos Garcia were two of the standouts on the Sophomore team playing both offense and defense. Others on offense were Alan Coleman, Terrance Lyons, Tom Blake and Mike Ortiz. On defense were Mike McClarie, Dave Livingston, and Dario Frescas.

The coaching staff for the Sophomore team was head coach Kuns, assistants were Coach Manthorne, Green and Corkrum. They all did a good job judging by the talent of the Sophomore team and the overall winning season.

Quick Discipline

"Freshmen learn quickly, they also were very disciplined," observed Coach Paul. They had hopes of a winning season and they obtained just that with a season of 8-1. Just like the Sophomore team, their only defeat was against Los Altos with the score of 0-17. A few of the games were won by a wide margin. Such games were against Alhambra where the final score was 35-0; against Rowland the Mustangs were on top with the score of 16-0.

The coaching staff that contributed to the winning season was; Head Coach Denis Paul, assistants Coach William Sheppard and McKinney. Running back Mike Lenahan, wide receiver, kicker Jeff Hooker, and quarterback, Dave Ungard were just a few of the freshmen that contributed to a winning season.

Frosh Reserve finished the season with a record of 1-5. "Though other teams dropped down their freshmen to play our reserve team, they did a good job," said Coach Rick Valencia. Also coaching the Reserve team was Coach Schafer.

Tom Buzzaro and Sam Doty were just two of the Reserve team that did a good job this season. Though this is the first year at Walnut for Coach Valencia, when asked how he liked coaching our Reserve team he replied, "I love it. The kids, the coaches are great." 21

Tough Games, Tough Team

"We had tough competition, but we were competitive." That was the comment made by Ms. Liz Lady (Coach) who headed the Varsity Volleyball team. She was talking about the stiffer competition expected from the Sierra League teams.

Top players included Dana Tweedie, Barbie Veselic and Ronda Dalthorp. Barbie was named Most Valuable Player; Ronda was honored with First Team All League Award.

Part of their success was attributed to an experienced Varsity team. There were many returning players to provide tough competition for their opponents.

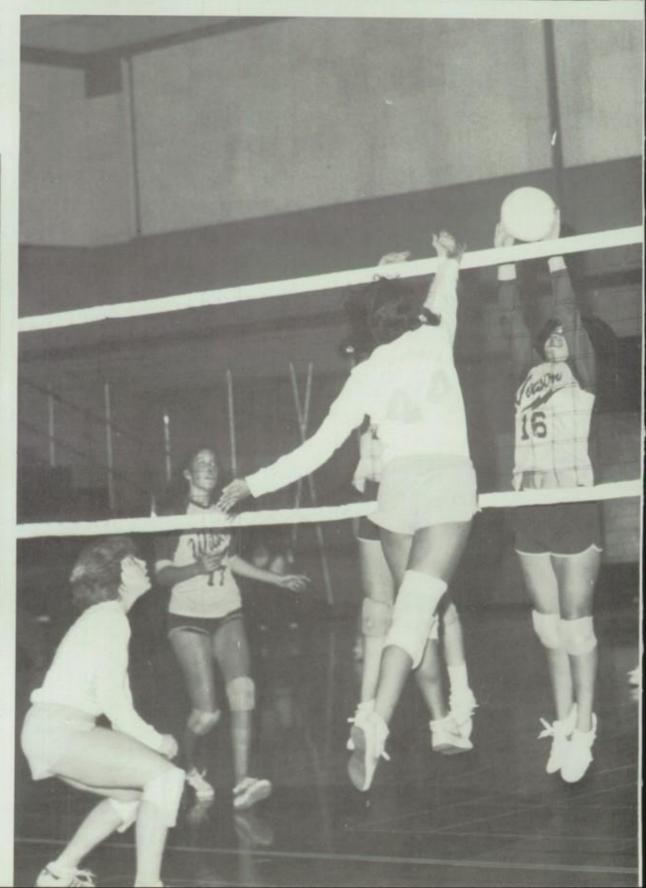

Ms. Lady hoped to come out on top at the end of the season and to obtain a CIF playoff berth. Her Varsity team achieved both. They finished the season in 2nd place and went to CIF. They played Cypress in their first game, but lost two to none.

Spiking for Perfection

Everyone on the Frosh-Soph team put in practice time, including the new coach Ms. Melinda Jones. Ms. Jones took over the team part way through the season. She commented, "With a lot of people's help, I managed to produce a winning team." The team established a 6-2 record.

Junior Varsity volleyball kept up their tradition of winning by finishing the season with a 13-2 record and possession of first place. The team was composed mostly of juniors, who carried the bulk of the load.

At first glance, cross country seems to be a sport in which a group of runners race over a hilly course trying to make the best time. It seems to offer very little as a spectator sport, since only a small segment of the race can be viewed at one time. But the few spectators that did come saw what the runners really went through. The spectators cheered the runners on until the very end.

Mike Camacho was the top Varsity Cross Country runner. He set a new school record of 15:47 against Los Altos. What kind of race did Mike run? "He's a front runner," savs Coach Jim Polite. "Sometimes, though, he'll slow down at the beginning and finish strong at the end. Over the years he has really learned how to pace himself," As one runner said, "Mike is a down hill runner. He has the advantage when it comes to down hill running." Mike had injured himself before the C.I.F. finals and didn't run as well as he had in the previous meets. But, Mike had captured the Sierra League dual meet crown, and bore the trademark of every top-notch athlete - the belief that good technique leads to success.

The team achieved a league record of 5-0 and a fifth straight League Championship. They also took 45 straight dual meets. Cross Country went to C.I.F. prelims and took second. They were able to go to Castaic Lake for C.I.F. finals. They didn't do as well as expected, taking fifth.

Future Stars Emerge

Taking a step in the right direction was what the Junior Varsity Cross Country team had done. Dedicated runners, such as John Riddell and Brad Popham, helped the team place first in the Sierra League and go undefeated with a 5-0 record.

Over the past ten years, the J.V. team had gone undefeated in the Hacienda League. They moved into tougher competition in the Sierra League and were still pulling through with two more undefeated titles. "Their toughest competition in the Sierra League was Rowland," coach Jim Polite remarked. Even so, the J.V.'s defeated Rowland 15 to 49.

When asked if publicity would get more people to come to the meets, Kathy Lispi replied, "I think so, but even though Coach Polite doesn't do a lot of publicity for us, he's still a good coach, as you can tell."

The powerful Boys' Frosh-Soph Cross Country team successfully obtained their 6th consecutive league championship, making a firm base in the ever-powerful Sierra League. Coach Jim Polite was looking forward to seeing these young and highly skilled athletes on the future Varsity squad.

The Sierra League seemed to be no contest for the Girls' Cross Country team. They breezed through a very successful season, winning their second league championship in a row with a perfect record of 5-0.

By winning the league title, the Girls' Cross Country team was given the opportunity to advance to the CIF prelims held at MSAC. Coach Polite commented, "The girls did not run their best and could have done better." By not placing in the top five, the team was unable to advance to the CIF finals that were held at Castaic Lake.

17 in a Row

In the two seasons since Mr. Charles Sismondo took over as Girls' Varsity Tennis coach, the team won 17 consecutive matches. The Walnut girls were 20-0 in overall competition. Diane Daniels, the team's No. 1 singles player, compiled a 43-6 record. The No. 2 player, Freshman, Krista von Stetten had a record of 44-9. The three regular doubles teams lost only two sets among them.

When asked the reasons for his success, Mr. Sismondo said, "We have a lot of extra girls who aren't good enough to make Varsity or J.V. In the future these girls will be able to help us. We won't have to rebuild our team." Diane, a sophomore, became the team's No. 1 singles player as a freshman. "I just like to play tennis," she commented. "Last year it was a little scary being the no. 1 player and playing against girls who had more experience. But after a while it got easier."

Fun at the Top

On the wings of a tennis ball, the J.V. Girls' Tennis team hovered at the top. The girls in their new uniforms walked off the courts undefeated in all the games during the season.

The invasion of smog caused some preleague games to be canceled. One early morning practice was arranged to compensate for after school practices missed because of hazardous air warnings.

Valerie Mealy, Laura Hill, Lori Mason and doubles team Kelly Brown and Denice Munier were loaned to the Varsity team. Since these players always defeated their opponents, playing for the Varsity gave them more of a challenge. Felicia Sirchia and Debbie Cartwright, and Pauline Osaki and Jana Orth, the usual two and three doubles team, more often than not won all the sets they played.

Groans were heard from the athletes when requested to take a lap around the backstops. But Coach Jim Faren found ways to make the team move faster by racing with them or guaranteeing the last runner another lap. Teasing and being teased was one way the girls showed affection for their coach. The real names of the girls were often forgotten because of the name changing of Coach Faren. The seriousness came with the pep talks when the coach told them to "go out there and do your best."

▲CONCENTRATION is the key as Jana Orth attempts to return an opponent's serve. Jana and Pauline Osaki were Walnut's no. 3 doubles team.

■WASHING CARS was the way the tennis teams earned money for necessary equipment. As Kelly Brown shows, it wasn't all fun and games.

Waterpolo? How in the world do you play waterpolo? Before this year I couldn't even have answered this question. I still don't know a whole lot about it, but I did have a good time at the games. Waterpolo is very similar to basketball only it's played in the water.

The team did well considering it was their first year playing for Walnut. Coach Bob Woolley informed me that Varsity finished 6 and 8, whereas Frosh-Soph finished 4 and 5. "I felt we could have done much better at the beginning of the season. The second half of the season we proved to be a much more competitive team," commented Coach Woolley.

I thought the last game against Rowland was so exciting! It went into double overtime before our team won, 15-13. The second game against the Los Altos Conquerors was really a thriller, too. The first time our team had played them, they lost 20-5. This time, though, they held on until the last seconds of the game, losing 11-8.

Fighting by the Rules

"Wrestling is a one on one fight with rules and regulations so no one gets hurts," stated Coach Rick Valencia. He also stressed that it takes a determined and hard working young man to become a fine wrestler.

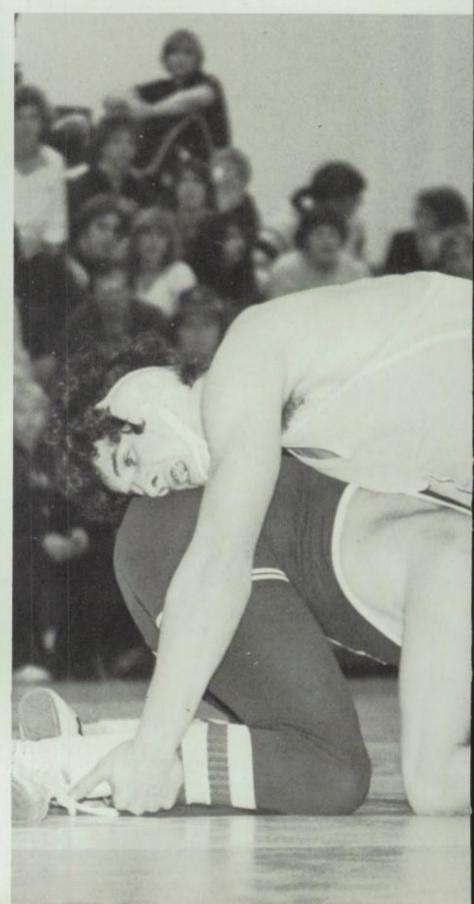

One of the tougher competitors for the wrestlers had been Rowland. When asked how he thought his wrestlers did in the match against Rowland, Coach Valencia answered. "We wrestled great all the way up. I was completely satisfied with the way we wrestled, even though we lost. The match shouldn't have been that close. We almost beat them."

This was Coach Valencia's first year to coach at Walnut. In the past years he had coached at Edgewood, our toughest competition next to Los Altos. He said he really enjoyed coaching for Walnut, and planned to hold a summer wrestling camp for children ranging from ages 5-10 in the Walnut area. The coach hoped that when future freshmen would come into Walnut they would know how to wrestle and not waste a year learning.

Holding Their Own

"We are a young team made up of mostly sophomores and freshmen, but we're holding our own," stated J.V. wrestling coach Bill Shaffer. With three hours a day of practice, the wrestlers gained confidence and composure. When asked to describe the wrestlers on J.V., coach Shaffer replied, "Gutsy".

Some of the standouts on the J.V. team were Brian Acosta, Arnold Johnson, Ron Paulson and Greg Renteria. With a halfway record of 4-1, the wrestlers were looking forward to a first in league.

It all happened during the first home game of the season. Highly ranked Claremont was expected to leave Walnut way behind in scoring, but somehow the final results were quite different. The Mustangs held on tightly up until the very end, when Claremont took the lead with a final score of 59-61.

After the first game, the Mustangs had a rough time pulling themselves back together. For the first few weeks of league play, Walnut seemed to lose game after game. Coach Jerry Davis claimed there were various reasons for the losses. "What most people don't realize about the team is that they are still in the developmental stage. The majority of the players are undergrads; therefore, they haven't reached their full potential yet. We've also been scheduled to play top-rated teams this season, plus we're in a tough league."

No matter how each game resulted, the Mustang basketball players never sloughed off or gave up. Player sacrificed their lunches to practice in the gym and traveled to Cal State Fullerton on weekends to play. Dinners and other social activities were held to keep their morale up.

Although the Mustangs didn't take a first place in league, they still proved by their dedication and ability to be a highly competitive team with a future ahead of them.

A Goode Team

When asked if Coach Jon Goode had a close team, he replied, "I have nine really good guys as far as mental awareness and the unity of the team is concerned." According to Coach Goode, even if the Junior Varsity didn't win another game all year, they were a "good group of guys."

The team was not a very quick one, which at times worked against them. In their first game against Los Altos, The Mustangs were unable to keep up with the Conquerors' sharp passing and fast play-setting.

Coach Goode's second year of coaching was made easier by solid play from Drexel Spivey and Drew Johannsen. The players were asked to put time in over the weekends, but, "there was no CIA Force checking up on them," commented Coach Goode.

Sierra League Hopefuls

Starting off the season right, the sophomore basketball players were tied with Los Altos at the halfway mark, with a 4-1 record. "We have a good chance of winning league this year", stated coach Tony Kuns. Their only defeat of the first half was against Los Altos where the game went into double overtime and lost by 3 points, 52-49. When asked to describe the sophomore basketball team, coach Kuns replied, "Fun". The players are easy to coach and we have fun on and off the court. Standouts on the sophomore team were Brian Martin, Bruce Himes, and Jeff Vermilyea.

"They are always working hard, stated coach Scott Cassels. When asked to describe his team, freshmen coach Cassels replied, "Gusty". Some of the standouts on the freshmen team were Todd Rockwell, Mike Lenahan, Walter Johnson and Brad Johnson.

The freshmen reserve was hanging on at the half, also in contention for a Sierra league title. "The reason we are doing so well is that they are very disciplined", stated coach Sam Hard. Their record at the half was 4-1. Some of the standouts on the reserve team were Brad Denahan, Sanny Doty and Tim Smith. They were just a few of the players that were giving their all for a Sierra League title.

Aggressiveness took a lot of practice for the Varsity Girls' Basketball team. "Having the kids out at a 2 hour and 15 minute practice everyday is what makes your team go. Our strength is to stay even with most teams the first half and try to wear them down. The second half, after we wore them down, then we just kept running and pretty soon they started not getting back on defense. Right when this happens we pulled away and started breaking a little bit more. Our breaks started working because we kept hustling." stated Coach Ms. Lorelee Miller.

When asked if Coach Miller's team was aggressive, she replied, "Yes, very aggressive, extremely aggressive. Fact is, we have to stay out of foul trouble 'cause we're aggressive. But our aggressiveness helps us not to give up." Coach Miller also stated, "Basketball's one of the best sports to practice in, because it's more of a game-like situation in practice. You can play more while you practice. That's one of the benefits."

Coach Miller coached this young and aggressive basketball team to have a wide open running game. Their strength was handling the ball while running the court.

Coach Miller believed that chances of the team winning League were very slim because Rowland and Los Altos had too much experience. But she hoped they could knock one of them off, at least one game. By defeating one of the tougher competitors, this would give the girls a good chance at making it to CIF as a second place team.

Turning a Team Around

Scoring more points than ever before, the girls' frosh-soph basketball team shifted into high gear to break the losing record of the previous year. With a new coach, a new team and more scheduled games, the participants managed to score over 35 points in their games in comparison with the 1978-1979 frosh-soph team which scored an average of 15 points per

In preleague games, starters Cheryl Schrieyr, Lisa Torres, Megan Becker, and alternating wings (guards) usually defeated the opponents. Fouled up by the rain, practices were cancelled leading to a loss of the first league game. The benefit from the rainfall was a chance to play in the gymnasium on game days rather than battling on cold concrete.

Fifteen girls coached by Gary Brittain composed the frosh-soph team. To start the season, Coach Brittain sat on the pile of basketballs to give the girls their first pep talk. He explained what was expected from each member and described his pet peeves. After the girls' first warm-up exercises, Coach Brittain was surprised to find that "his team," as he calls it, could acutally dribble, pass

Swimmers Given a Boost

Talk about practice! The Varsity Swimming team put in plenty. Workouts were held Tuesday through Friday from 6:00 to 8:00 a.m. and also Monday through Friday 3:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday practice was also a must, from 8:00 to 10:00 a.m. If a person also was a swim member of the AAU, (10 of Walnut's swimmers were) practices were mandatory on Saturday 4:30 to 7:00 p.m. and Sunday 8:00 to 10:00 a.m. and 4:30 to 7:00 p.m. That's almost 30 hours per week. Coach Bob Woolley explained, "We're willing to put out that much effort to reach our goals for the season: winning league and having a good representation in CIF."

New to the swim team of 1980 was a Booster Club. They were a great support to the program, plus they donated a much-needed record board for swimming. The season also brought Walnut's own invitational, which included 14 schools in all.

The support of the student body and spectators was very important during swim meets because of the combined Boys' and Girls' seasons. At least six timers were needed to start a meet, but in order for a swim to count for CIF, three timers on the lane, or a total of 18 timers, were mandatory. The majority of the time these timers were volunteers from the stands.

One noteworthy characteristic of the Varsity team was their closeness. Many of the players served on the Waterpolo team earlier in the year, and coupled with all those hours of practicing, closeness was understandable. Coach Woolley helped-promote this feeling by planning activities for the team such as the trip to Los Angeles for a USC-UCLA swim meet. "I wanted to show the boys how much excitement is generated in a meet of that caliber by the cheering and rooting of the swimmers and spectators," remarked Mr. Woolley.

Turnabout Is Fair Play

In going for another league championship, the Varsity Badminton team was shooting for their sixth consecutive first place finish, four of them in Hacienda League and two in Sierra League competition. The doubles teams were stronger than in past years when singles and doubles were about even in strength. Even so, the combination was considered powerful enough to anticipate another league title.

In recent years the aim in high school sports was to give girls an equal chance to participate. In contrast, in 1979 the Varsity Badminton team was one of few in the area which did not carry boys on their squad. To remedy this, J.V. coach Lorelee Miller added five boys to her team. She stated that they were very competent for first year players.

"Their toughest competition will be Los Altos again, but we will do alright against them," stated Varsity coach Judy Manthorne. Practicing 2½ hours a day in the gym prepared the team for their season.

Some of the stand-outs on the Varsity team were Michelle Marcellin and Minette Marcellin, doubles; Brenda Boggs, singles; Cathy Werley and Margaret Majus, doubles; Diane Sorenson and Sheila Slattery, doubles; and Nona Corcoran, singles. 🙊

Baseball Been Bery Bery Good

As Chico Escuela would say, "Baseball has been bery bery good to the Mustangs." After a successful 18 and 9 season in 1979, the Mustangs lost the majority of their pitching staff with the graduating class. However, this didn't seem to get in their way, partly because of the outstanding ability of team captains Dennis Willard, Brad Shuler and, Bob Williams and other returning lettermen. According to Coach Dennis Paul, the strengths, such as the veteran infield, outfield and strong hitting, outweighed the weakness of inexperienced pitching.

The Walnut players wouldn't settle for just any position; they planned on going for the league championship and making it to the CIF playoffs. In order to reach these goals, the team mainly needed to avoid raindrops. During the beginning of the season, the team found it difficult to practice due to the tormenting rain. However, the players did have the added incentive of field improvements such as batting cages, an outfield fence, batting tunnels and new uniforms.

The money for all the new equipment and field improvements had to come from somewhere, so the players suddenly became solicitors. Anyone who knew a baseball player was probably asked to buy a ticket to a car wash, the Alumni game, or maybe a dance. Or possibly you were hit up as a sponsor for the baseball marathon. Talk about a large amount of fundraisers! The Mustang baseball players were surely kept busy.

Explaining what was important to him during the '80 baseball season, Coach Paul remarked, "We are very encouraged by the progress made by this group of athletes towards making the baseball program a very competitive 4A program."

Baseball Flooded With Young Talent

The first challenge that first year coach Mr. Mike Wendt and Frosh-Soph coach Scott Cassells had was the tough job of deciding who would stay on the teams and who would get cut. "With so many good players coming out, it's hard to tell who's making the team and who's not," coach Wendt observed. The things they looked for in a player are good abilities and a good attitude.

Having young but experienced teams, the junior varsity and Frosh-Soph squads were expected to do very well. Anthony Sanchez commented, "Our team looks good. We should be on top by the end of the season."

According to coach Scott Cassells, the two excellent baseball leagues in the Diamond Bar-Walnut Valley areas supply experienced young ball players for the baseball program at Walnut. With so much talent in these leagues, becoming a Walnut High player was even more difficult for the incoming freshmen and sophomores.

Shooting for the Leaders

The Varsity Boys' track team entered the season with one goal in mind, to beat West Covina, Sierra League first place team. In the past ten years, West Covina had taken 80 consecutive wins. The only two Walnut losses last year were against West Covina.

Practicing two hours or more a day and weekends, the Mustangs worked to show their all to West Covina. In the off-season the track team members worked either on weights or participated in other sports. When asked to describe the boys varsity team, head coach Sam West replied, "extremely young, but with outstanding potential."

With such standouts as Mike Camacho running the mile, and the 2 mile under the supervision of distance coach Jim Polite, Tony Adkins long jumping and triple jumping and Alan Coleman and Issac Woolridge running hurdles, relays and sprints, the team was talented.

Fielding and Refielding a Non-Team

The terms JV and Frosh-Soph track teams were actually misleading since these teams didn't exist in the way that other teams did. The teams changed from week to week as players were shuffled from team to team depending on their week's performance.

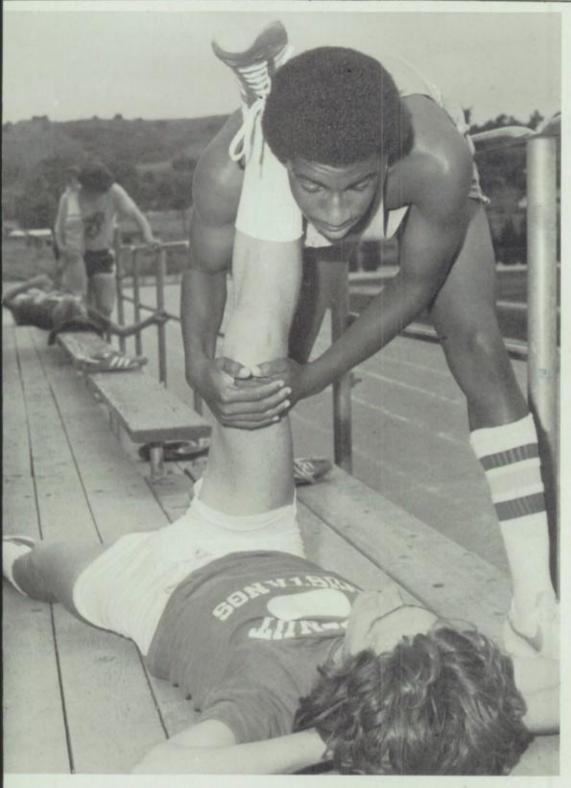

The JV team (on any given week) was made up of players who would not be competing on the Varsity level at the upcoming meet. According to Coach Sam West the three dominant players were three year hurdler, Roger Edson; two year sprinter, Alan Chou; and distance runner, Bob Sims. The Frosh-Soph team consisted of freshmen and sophomores who were not participating on the other two squads.

In 1979 both of these teams were league champions. However, while each team did change from week to week and did accumulate a win-loss record, participating in post-season meets was a matter of individual qualifying.

Three in a Row?

After having taken the Hacienda League title their first year in existence and the Sierra League title in 1979, the girls' track team faced the goal of getting three titles in a row.

A new coach changed the look of this year's team, but other than that, the Varsity team remained the same. New coach, Mr. Tim Guzik, joined the Walnut girls, enabling three year coach, Mrs. Katie Foster, to coach the squad more efficiently.

A few of the outstanding athletes on the team were Laura Simone, Lezlie Heard, and Kim Jackson. Laura and Lezlie were half of the 440 relay team that had gone to CIF for the last two years. With the addition of Kim and Carla Hopkins, the relay team was expected to be even better. Some of the young hopefuls were Rhonda Black, high jumper, Carrie Flores, 880, and Melinda Manz, distance runner.

"I can't wait for the season to get started," remarked coach Foster. She went on to predict, "We have an excellent group of girls this year. They should do very well."

A NICE FOLLOW-THROUGH AND GOOD CONTACT with the ball help loe Kim make a per-

Continuing their 58 consecutive league winning streak was what Coach Charles Sismondo's Varsity Tennis team aimed for. With the help of the three dominant players, Mark Friend, Phil Moesser and Ruben Mendoza, the team would possibly have the power to capture the Sierra League title. Coach Sismondo hoped to take at least first, second, or third in the league. But he said he was not going to become overconfident, regardless of their past record.

According to Coach Sismondo, Ruben Mendoza would have the ability to get a scholarship for tennis. Ruben was just a sophomore on Varsity Tennis, and also one of the top players. Coach Sismondo felt that Ruben had the potential to become the best player Walnut had ever had.

Over the past four years, Walnut's Varsity Tennis team had not lost a match, undefeated since 1976. Coach Sismondo was optimistic that they would go to CIF, and pointed out that they had never been beaten in the first round of CIF.

Keeping the Ball Bouncing

How does a team finish first in league for six years in a row? According to JV Tennis Coach Bill Cline, it takes long hours of practice. The coach and the players were apparently willing to put out this effort in order to capture their seventh straight championship, for they practiced not only after school, but also on Saturdays and rainy days.

With four returning Junior Varsity players, the team expected to be very strong in league. However, Coach Cline stated, "In addition to working for an undefeated season, another of our goals is to develop varsity players for next year. We've also been trying many players in new positions looking for possible combinations."

At the Frosh-Soph level, the primary goal for the players was to improve their tennis skills to a competitive level as a team and individually. Coach Howard Alcosser claimed, "Every team member will play in every match, thereby getting experience in a competitive situation."

A team's achievements are often thought to be reflections of a coach's dedication and knowledge. The Frosh-Soph and JV coaches both seemed to hold these qualities and demonstrated them in their duties as coaches. Coach Alcosser and Coach Cline organized practices and matches for the teams, worked on uniforms and equipment, plus set up fundraisers, such as the Tennis-sponsored car wash. Basically, the coaches had the responsibility to "keep the ball bouncing."

Hopes to Spring Ahead

There was hope for Coach Sue Boyette's Varsity softball team to capture the Sierra League championship once again. With the help of only two seniors, captains Sheila Freeman and Michelle Sirchia, this team was well equipped with young and aggressive players. Sheila was selected MVP and made first team All-League. Two returning players made second team All-League in 1979, Ronda Dalthorp and Nettie Morris. Ronda was also named most outstanding infielder while Nettie earned the most hits award. Moving up from JV to fill spots vacated by graduating players were Katt Buchanan, Brenda Stubbs, Tracy Dalthorp and Donna Waska.

Hopeful stars, Shawna Bryan, Linda Alamprese, Julie Telford and the rest of the JV team soon found that Coach Leon Mountain's key to success was lots of running and drills on skills. It was felt by Nettie Morris, Varsity softball player, that the team was being well conditioned. She said, "Every time I look up, I see those suckers running!"

Smaller but Stronger

Starting the season with a smaller but stronger team, the Girls, Varsity swim team looked for a Sierra League title. When asked to describe the team, head coach Linda Thomas replied, "Hot! We are going to be hot this year! Some working on the offseason playing water polo and lifting weights got us prepared for the season."

One of the concerns for Coach Thomas was whether the team would be large enough to beat the bigger teams. With Wilson being the team to beat, the Mustangs prepared for the season.

On the other hand, J.V. went into the season with a larger team than last year. The J.V. team was also working for a Sierra League title. Practicing two hours a day, Varsity swimming 35-55,000 yards and J.V. swimming 23-30,000, the Mustangs looked forward to the upcoming season. Some of the stand-outs on the Varsity team were captain Kari Cook, senior Sandy Miller, freshmen Susan Cook and Jennifer Miller. A few outstanding players on J.V. were Jacque Lada, René Martinez, Vicki Hanick, Tami Scott and Bobby Godadin.

■"GIVE ME AN I," shouts Carleece Williams as she leads the seniors to victory in class competition. Pep rallies were a time for students to relax and have fun.

▼SMILING IN VICTORY, Mike Temple discusses his match with coach Bill Schaefer. Coach Schaefer teaches at Del Paso as well as coaching wrestling.

To the Brokers and Stockholders of Walnut High Inc:

We have examined the previous statements of each element of Walnut High Inc. for the period ending June 12th, 1980, and these are our findings.

Each individual stockholder invested a part of himself in the Company, whether it was belonging to a Corporation, participating in the various Transactions that took place, or being part of a team, a Merger.

Belonging to a Corporation often meant very hard but rewarding work. The Band and Drill Team spent many long hours on the football field practicing. But their efforts did not go unrewarded. The Mustang Band took first place in the El Monte, Baldwin Park and Temple City parades as well as placing first at the Cal Poly Field Tournament. The Wrangler Drill Team also placed first in the Baldwin cross-country teams went to the CIF

Park parade. The Sweepstakes award was given to the Drill Team for their performance in the Temple City parade.

The majority of WHS Stockholders participated in or observed Transactions. Football games and pep rallies were the most highly attended activities. Christine Russell explained, "The pep rallies are fun to go to 'cause' they really get you excited for the game". Pleasant sights and sounds also attracted many students to choir performances. Cabaret Night, their first performance of the year, was entirely sold out. The Christmas Concert at Cal Poly also drew a large

For the Mergers, it also was a good year. In cross-country, boys' Varsity, JV and FS teams placed first in league along with the girls' Varsity team. Individuals from both boys' and girls' finals. Varsity and JV soccer both tied for first in league and went on to the CIF semi-finals before being knocked out of competition. Winning another league title, girls' Varsity tennis went to the quarter finals when they were beaten by Estancia and disqualified. In wrestling, Mark McNicholl placed fourth in CIF finals and went to state where he finished sixth.

Based on our examination of the reports of the 1979-80 school year, we came to the conclusion that the year had many positive aspects. The return of the initial investments made by us the stockholders were great in value. We acquired much growth and development and in doing so proceeded to live out the year with a positive attitude toward ourselves, our future and our company, Walnut High School Incorporated.

Financiers/Listings

A major part of a company's success is attributed to its financial backing — the financiers; these people and businesses were also a necessary part of the 1980 CAYUSE.

The financial section of the year-book aided the students in many ways. It enabled the students to purchase their annuals at a lower cost. For example, in the school's 12 year history students were always able to buy an annual with an ASB card for under twelve dollars. As stated by the yearbook advisor Mr. Steven Bailey, "If it were not for all the ads that the staff sold, we would either have to drop our color pages or increase the price of the book by a couple of dollars."

Since 1976 the CAYUSE had depended on financial help from advertisers. The staffers from 1976 to dollars of 1979-80, many people considered the Susan B. Anthony dollars a flop. These new coins were first produced to cut down on the use of silver, by plating the copper dollars with this precious metal.

►UNABLE TO REACH THE GOAL of $11,000 from 1979, the financial section was still able to reach the second highest all time goal of approximately $9,000. All CAYUSE members had to sell a minimum of $300 worth of ads.

worth of ads. That is the equivalent of putting out a free yearbook for two fiscal years.

Over this past year the advertisers

1980 sold approximately $40,000

Over this past year the advertisers as well as the student body profited from the financial section. The annual gave the advertisers a wider range of selling power, provided Walnut High School with new photography equipment and allowed the CAYUSE staff to improve the year-book by inserting more color. We invite all the share-holders to analyze our report of the financial status of this past year

SUPPORT THE BUSINESSES THAT SUP-PORT YOUR YEARBOOK, THE CAYUSE.

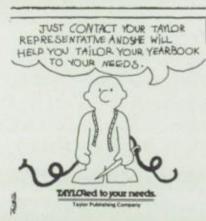

Advertisements in the yearbook serve several purposes. They're important to the publication of the yearbook because they enable us to add more special effects, pages, and color photography. They benefit the student body by helping to heighten the annual's quality and reduce its price.

Thank you to all who promoted the Cayuse thru ads and helped to make our yearbook stand among the best in the nation.

of the Cayuse are an important part of the yearbook. Through their support, students are able to buy their books at a reduced price. Their contributions also make possible many added features that enhance the quality of the yearbook. Without these patrons, the Cayuse could never be as successful as it has been.
